Mississippi Given School Ultimatum

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court, rejecting a Justice Department plea for delay, has told 30 Mississippi school districts to prepare now to desegregate by Dec. 31.

"When we say you have to get started immediately, that is what we mean—tomorrow," said Judge Griffin B. Bell of Atlanta during a conference Thursday with the district school superintendents.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judges gave the superintendents a rough outline of what they must do and said the official orders would be issued today.

For the most part, districts were told to follow guidelines laid down for them last Aug. 11 by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

A Justice Department proposal that the appeals court delay a little longer to enable the school boards to draw up their own desegregation plans, with HEW assistance, was rejected.

The Supreme Court, in a decision Oct. 22, ordered immediate desegregation of the districts.

Judge Bell, the spokesman for the three-judge appeals court panel, stressed that school officials should begin the reassignment of pupils and faculty, the revamping of school bus routes and other services and facilities as soon as the formal order is issued.

By Dec. 31, the judge said, the plans should be in complete operation.

Body, Empty Life Boat Found Off Nantucket Coast

BOSTON (AP) — An unidentified body and an empty motor life boat with the name "Keo" on it were recovered Thursday night about 40 miles southeast of the area where the 629-foot Liberian tanker Keo broke apart Wednesday in a storm and its 36 men were stranded on the stern.

A Coast Guard spokesman said this morning the body was recovered by the USS Fox during an intensive search of 20,000 miles of ocean off Nantucket.

Five aircraft and five Navy ships searched Thursday and through the night, and planes were to rejoin them at dawn.

"The chances are that if they are found now they will be in lifeboats or on rafts," a Coast Guard officer said.

Most of the crewmen were Greek nationals, said the Keo's New York agent, Crestwood Shipping Agencies. Four were South Americans, thought to be from Colombia.

Cadillac Asking Income Tax Vote

CADILLAC (AP)—Citizens in Cadillac marshalled petition signers to force a referendum on an income tax proposal recently adopted by their city commissioners.

As approved by the commissioners, the tax was to have been effective Jan. 1, 1970. But dissident residents Thursday night presented the commissioners with some 390 signatures calling for a popular vote on the matter before it can be enacted.

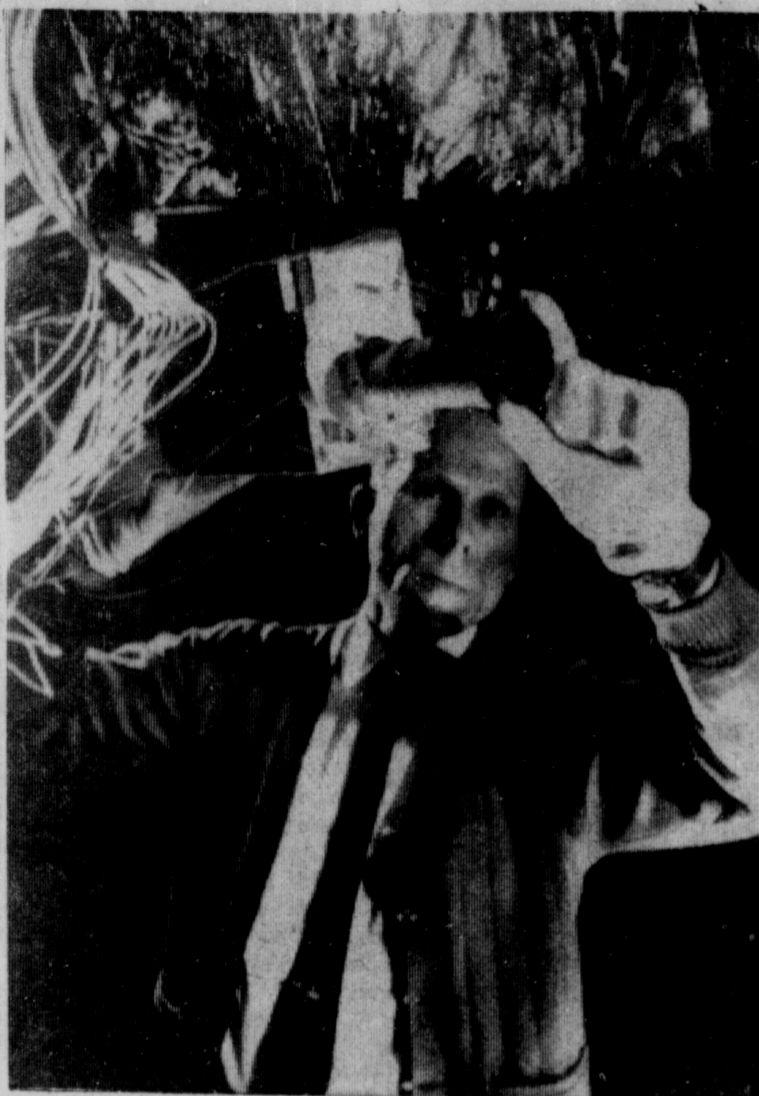

Pentagon Sticks By Guns, Forbids Avenue Marching

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials who refused to issue a permit for a mass march to protest the Vietnam war admit they have not read a report contending a similar rejection helped trigger violence during the 1968 Democratic convention.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst said again Thursday the government would not allow a march of thousands along Pennsylvania Avenue and

Countdown Set For Apollo 12; Takeoff Nov. 14

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Electrical power surged into a giant Saturn 5 rocket today as the launch team began the week-long countdown for Apollo 12, man's second moon-landing mission.

The countdown clock started right on schedule at noon EST, 167 hours 22 minutes from scheduled liftoff at 11:22 a.m. next Friday.

4 Automatic Holds
In addition to 98 hours of countdown, four automatic holds totaling more than 69 hours were programmed for use by the launch team and for dealing with possible problems.

As the countdown started, launch director Walter Kapryan reported all launch preparations were proceeding smoothly.

The three astronauts, Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean, planned several hours today in command ship and lunar lander simulators, rehearsing key steps in the 10-day flight.

Topography Briefing
Also on their schedule was a briefing on lunar topography.

Conrad, Gordon and Bean first climb into the command ship trainer to practice procedures for the rocket burn that will propel them out of earth orbit and onto the quarter-million-mile translunar trail.

That ignition occurs over the Pacific Ocean after the astronauts have circled the globe one and a half times to make certain the spaceship's systems are working.

Practice Descent
Later, Conrad and Bean are to enter the landing simulator to practice descent to the moon and liftoff for return to the orbiting command craft.

They are to land on the moon's Ocean of Storms early Nov. 19 for a 31½-hour stay. They are to make two excursions outside totaling seven hours to carry out the first detailed exploration of the lunar surface.

Traffic Death
GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — A 35-year-old Grand Rapids woman was killed in Grand Rapids in a collision involving two cars and a truck. Grand Rapids police said Gail M. Robinson was taken to Butterworth Hospital shortly after the accident occurred at Fuller and Three Mile Road. She died shortly thereafter. She was driving one of the vehicles involved. The accident is still under investigation.

Ryan, Parochialist
Foe Lock Horns
In Bitter Debate

KALAMAZOO (AP) — In a debate at a junior high school in Kalamazoo Thursday night, Michigan House Speaker William Ryan locked horns with a bitter foe of state aid to non-public schools.

State Sen. James Gray, D-Warren, charged "a few years ago the same people who support parochialism now were clamoring for laws eliminating discrimination in housing. Now they're asking for public monies to support discrimination in religion."

Ryan, leader of the legislative drive to enact parochialism, replied by citing a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision stemming from Oregon and asserted that pumping funds into public schools only is unconstitutional.

Mass Parade Likely
There "is a possibility," he said, the committee will attempt a mass parade to the White House even if the government stands by its decision to forbid the march.

Kleindienst, the Justice Department's No. 2 official, acknowledged the New Mobilization Committee had pledged to keep the demonstration peaceful.

But some "pro-violence groups," he said, "are seeking to infiltrate the mass march." He identified only the militant Weatherman section of the Students for a Democratic Society.

New Mobe spokesmen, meanwhile, disputed Kleindienst's predictions of violence, claiming the charge was made to frighten would-be participants.

Collective Decision
But Kleindienst added the decision to bar a mass march was a "collective decision of the executive branch of government," including President Nixon, made in accordance with "facts and circumstances as they exist in Washington, D.C." and "not necessarily in relation to Chicago."

Mayor Richard J. Daley also raised the specter of potential violence to bar a march during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last year.

Although the National Violence Commission reported earlier this year Daley's permit refusal was a key factor in confrontations that followed, both Kleindienst and a key aide, John W. Dean III, said they were unfamiliar with the findings.

Agnew Getting 'Fire Support' From Out West

HONOLULU (AP) — Most Western Republican leaders attending a conference here say the voters want Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to keep firing away at antiwar demonstrators. But one GOP Governor thinks he should tone down his words.

Gov. David Cargo of New Mexico told a newsman some of the organizers of the Vietnam Moratorium Day are "a mess."

But he added: "I'm not so sure they are all intellectual snobs. I'm not so sure they all don't have anything to offer. Young people have a lot to say. They have noble ideas."

Cargo and other party leaders were interviewed Thursday at a session of the Western States Republican Conference at which Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., strongly defended Agnew for calling the leaders of the demonstrations "impudent snobs."

Goldwater got his biggest ovation when he said of Agnew, "The vice president's crime, it seems, was to describe an effete corps of impudent snobs as 'an effete corps of impudent snobs.'"

"I couldn't agree more with Vice President Agnew," said Gladys O'Donnell of California, president of the National Federation of Republican Women. "I think he speaks out. I think he is right. He is his own man." However, Cargo remarked that "we've done a lot of talking about lowering voices," referring to a phrase used by President Nixon, and asked "Why not do it?"

Viet Cong Guerrillas Hit Saigon Outposts

Attack First In 18 Months On Area Site

SAIGON (AP) — An estimated 100 Viet Cong guerrillas assaulted government outposts defending Saigon early today for the first time in 18 months, while other enemy forces made 68 rocket and mortar attacks across the country.

The shelling was the heaviest in more than two months. The South Vietnamese military commander for Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces said the sharply stepped up attacks marked the beginning of the enemy's winter campaign. His American counterpart said, "I don't think he's going to get very far with it."

Most of the attacks were in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon or in the central highlands. Casualties included two Americans killed, six wounded, three Vietnamese civilians killed and 20 civilians and 18 soldiers wounded.

Viet Cong guerrillas attacked two outposts manned by South Vietnamese combat police on the southern fringe of Saigon with AK47 rifles and hand-fired rockets shortly after midnight. The posts are about a mile apart.

There apparently was no attempt to infiltrate into the city, as earlier reports had indicated; instead the mission was to destroy the outposts, and it did not succeed, although the posts were lightly defended.

Council Discusses Traffic, Pollution Problems In City

The Escanaba Council had one of its best-attended sessions Thursday night since meetings have been held in the Catherine Bonifas Civic Center, with about 30 persons joining the Council in a discussion of topics ranging from public toilets to air pollution.

Speaking in connection with some of the community problems were George Erdman, Mrs. Mike Kolich, Walter Russell, Mrs. Frank Smokovich, Mrs. Edwin J. Seger and others.

On the non-controversial side the Council adopted proclamations in support of Michigan Education Week and Veterans Day.

There was little else on the agenda that did not somehow bring out expressions of discontent.

City Manager George Harvey told the Council that under Michigan law the city may not assess a school district and asked authorization for the city to pay $2,548 for sidewalk paving at the Lemmer School. This was the Area School District's share, he said, and he will continue to try and "hope we can get a refund."

Downtown Traffic:

The Safety Advisory Committee will meet next Tuesday and will discuss with a committee of businessmen proposals for improving the downtown traffic situation.

The City Council deferred its action on establishing the changes until next meeting, so that it will have the opportunity to receive the recommendation of the Safety Advisory group. The Safety Advisory body was unable to gather a quorum last week and for this reason the recommendation was delayed.

Councilman Edward J. Cox said he could "go along" with some of the proposals made by the businessmen and the Safety Advisors, but urged action by the Council to bring the subject to a conclusion.

Rest Area:

The so-called "rest area" for Escanaba's downtown, subject of debate at previous Council sessions, was given another unresolutive discussion Thursday night.

The controversy (as in the past over who pays what for downtown redevelopment) was unresolved, with the Council receiving reports from the Chamber of Commerce and Downtown Development Committee and asking for a meeting with the merchants.

At that meeting the Council and the business interest of central business district will further explore some way of reaching accord on the question of financing development and maintenance of a proposed rest area at 11th and Ludington Sts. The area is the former Standard Oil Co. station, which was deeded by Standard to the people of Escanaba.

The property was deeded to the City of Escanaba as a "contribution" and the only restriction is that it may not be used as a site for the business of selling or handling gasoline or fuels. The City Council in turn leased the property for one year to the Chamber of Commerce.

Councilmen said that unless the Chamber of Commerce gets moving in development of the property as a rest area, the Council will "give" the area back to the Standard Oil Co. Under city charter provisions it is doubtful the Council has authority to "give" public property away or return it to a former owner.

Discussions at last night's meeting ranged from defense by Councilman Richard Pryal of the continuing efforts of the merchants to come up with about $19,000 to meet estimated cost of renovating the former gas station for public rest facility; to Councilman Robert Bink's comment that as of last night "I could not vote to spend their (taxpayers') money" on the rest area.

Mayor Cecil B. Chase suggested that the Council receive the Chamber of Commerce progress reports and that the merchants continue their fundraising effort to meet the renovation cost.

The cost of maintaining and operating the rest area (estimated at about $6,000 annually) will be discussed again, for the merchants propose the city pick up the tab on that item.

Air Pollution:

Pollution of the air, damage to property by dust and vibrations from the operation of the Chicago & North Western Railway's ore facility were charged by Escanaba residents at the Council session.

The Council addressed a letter to the North Western, with copies to the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission and the Michigan Department of Health, calling for abatement of the nuisance. The Air Pollution Control Commission has cited the North Western and given it notice to control the pollution.

Residents of the area told of dirt in and outside their homes and of cracked walls.

"We are living in a dust storm," said Mrs. Mike Kolich. "My walls are cracking in every direction," said Mrs. Frank Smokovich, who has lived in the area for 38 years. "I have never had this problem before."

"We are going to start suit against the North Western if they ruin my property, and I'll sue them if they ruin my health," said George Erdman.

The North Western has been operating the facility since last spring.

"I think this is why we need an air pollution control ordinance in this county, because these things go on without control," said Councilman Richard Pryal.

Councilman Edward J. Cox defended the North Western and said it is working on the problem; and that he also believes that Mead Corp.'s new pulp mill will have an odor that is "cut down practically to nothing."

"I go along with and believe them," he said.

"We believe in industry and want it—but these people have a problem and they need an ordinance to protect them," said Pryal.

School Patrols:

Starting today the Stephenson Ave.-2nd Ave. N. intersection has the assistance of a police officer in escorting Washington School children across the street. The service is a temporary one, however, and the Safety Advisory Committee is to get together with school officials and work out a cooperative safety patrol or crossing guard plan and share in the cost, estimated to be about $700 a year.

There seemed to be some misunderstanding concerning the interest or lack of interest in the problem. The Council agenda lists "Petition from Washington School PTA" but two persons told the Council the PTA and school officials appeared uninterested.

Miscellany:

The resignation of Richard Geiss from the Safety Committee was accepted and Robert Crepeau, manager of the Michigan State Licensing Bureau, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

A resolution expressing appreciation to the Escanaba Veterans Council for its gift of $350 to assist in defraying the cost of a flagpole at the airport was adopted.

Low bids for trucks from Northern Motor Co. of $7,457 and from Coyne Chevrolet of $3,216 were accepted.

Plan Wide-Ranging Code For Consumers

LANSING (AP)—A complex, wide-ranging code affecting consumer credit on every conceivable retail product may be in store for Michigan shoppers.

Proposed by the National Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the 178-page uniform consumer code would put Michigan into line with the federal "truth in lending" statutes which require, among other things, clear, open disclosure of interest charges on credit purchases.

But the annual rate, itself, would be allowed to soar as high as 19 per cent with absolute freedom and under some conditions could go as high as 36 per cent.

"We're hoping to make the buyer as knowledgeable as we can before we release this thing," said Rep. Marvin Stempien, D-Livonia, chairman of the special House committee studying the bill.

"But after that we're saying, 'buyer-beware.'"

The effect of the bill would be to eliminate many contradictory restraints on market competition.

A uniform rate structure would be established for all credit sales of the same type it would replace Michigan's long-standing usury law which has numerous exemptions and different rates for different types of sales.

For example, a $3,000 purchase might be made today at any of the following, cumulative annual interest rates:

Bank—13.6 per cent; credit union—12 per cent; unsecured savings and loan—13.6 per cent.

For a new car the rate would be as much as 10.6 per cent, for home improvements 14.5 per cent. A used car would require interest paid at 16.2 per cent and if it were more than two years old the rate would go to 21.5 per cent.

But under the proposed uniform credit code, a single 21-per-cent interest rate would be set for any $3,000 purchase.

A sale of $100 would command a 36 per cent interest rate, whereas it now may have a rate of 13.6 per cent in a bank or 30 per cent at a small loan company for ready cash on short demand.

The proposed code would protect the consumer in numerous ways.

It would restrict garnishments—used by creditors to collect debts by demanding a customer's employer turn over part of his wages—and forbid discharging garnished employees.

It would give a housewife three days to cancel a sale contracted by a fast-talking door-to-door salesman.

Stempien said only Utah and Oklahoma so far have adopted versions of the code.

Fish Changes Are Approved

LANSING (AP)—The State Department of Natural Resources approved today tighter restrictions on commercial fishermen, but stressed it would be open-minded for possible changes.

Lake Erie will be closed to the taking of walleyes in April and October.

A spokesman said this is part of a plan coinciding with efforts made by Ontario and Ohio, aimed at rebuilding the walleye population.

Water-Filled Bumpers Slated For State Test

DETROIT (AP)—The Automobile Club of Michigan will test water-filled bumpers on 50 of its cars to evaluate the difference in repair costs and injuries when compared to another 50 vehicles with bumpers designed by manufacturers.

The soft-cushion bumpers are made of tough vinyl with plugs at the top to let water escape after impact. Water is forced through the holes, reducing the collision force by a more gradual slowing of the car than with regular bumpers, according to auto club officials.

The new-style bumpers require antifreeze in Michigan's cold climate, according to Ed Daniels, general manager of the auto club's Inter-Insurance Exchange.

"Auto Club feels it has an obligation to motorists to find ways of offering better and less expensive accident protection for both vehicles and passengers," says Daniels.

Daniels says studies have shown that soft-cushion bumpers have been instrumental in preventing auto damage in collisions up to 18 miles an hour, reducing damage at high speeds and significantly limiting injuries.

Wildlife Expert Says Heating Discharges Endanger Fish Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—The congressional committee examining the effects of power generation on environment has been told the future heat load on the nation's streams will be "stupendous."

"Few major interstate streams in the United States have not been affected by heated discharges" from steam electric plants, says Dr. Raymond E. Johnson of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Johnson told the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy how temperature changes in water can stop trout eggs from hatching or kill organisms vital to a stable stream bed ecology.

Donald Mount of the Water Pollution Control Administration told the hearing that the temperature criteria set by states are acceptable for now, but will most likely need to be modified as more information becomes available.

Included in Mount's presentation were examples of higher water temperature accelerating bacterial growth.

Johnson said there are some areas "where temperature changes have been judged to be good."

"It is possible that where minimal amounts of heat have been introduced without great fluctuation, production of aquatic food supplies has been enhanced, and faster growth of desirable food organisms and fishes has been a result," Johnson said.

"In other areas the changes have been judged to be unfavorable," Johnson said, citing greater amounts of nitrogen being absorbed by the Northwest's Columbia River water when it spills and churns over dams. In this case the nitrogen effects "are greatly intensified by temperature rises of only three degrees."

"Fish kills are reported to be more common than usual in the Columbia at a time when the nitrogen levels are at unprecedented heights. Superimposing the temperature increase may cause unprecedented salmon mortalities," Johnson concluded.

Michigan Guard Chief Against Vietnam Plan

LANSING (AP)—Maj. Gen. Clarence Schnipke, adjutant general of the Michigan National Guard, does not intend to go along with a suggestion by the country's top Guardsman that National Guard members be asked to show their support for American Vietnam policy next week.

Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson chief of the National Guard Bureau in Washington, had asked guard directors in all 50 states to instruct their men to drive with their car headlights on and fly the flag at their homes between Nov. 11-16.

"I'm not going to do anything particular," Schnipke said Tuesday. "I think it is inappropriate to be relayed through channels."

"Guardsmen can act as individual citizens," Schnipke added. "They have the right to respond to everything individually, to express themselves publicly as they choose."

Revenue Bills Cleared, Reform Action Under Way

LANSING (AP) — A billion-dollar state school aid bill — including $25 million for non-public schools — was sent to the Senate floor today by the Appropriations Committee.

The bill includes some $22 million less than the nearly $1.04 billion called for in Gov. William Milliken's educational reform message.

In a burst of speed Thursday the Senate Taxation Committee sent four revenue bills to the floor and thus cleared the way for action on Milliken's educational package.

Two key Milliken tax proposals were pried from committee late Thursday after one previously dissident GOP member switched his "no" vote to "aye."

The measures would eliminate the property tax credit on the income tax — pulling in some $116 million — and call for a popular vote on a 16-mill statewide property tax.

Two other Democrat-sponsored bills would remove machinery and equipment supplies used in agriculture and industry from the sales and use tax exemption roles. That would make an extra $60 million, sponsors said.

Births

PETERSON — Mr. and Mrs. Peter D. Peterson of 1617 Macneapolis Ave., Gladstone are the parents of a son, as yet unnamed, born at 11:22 a.m. on Nov. 5. The infant weighed 6 pounds and 14 ounces at birth. The mother is the former Beverly Creten.

JANKE — A daughter, Kristin Marie, weighing 8 pounds, was born to Pfc. and Mrs. August A. Janke III, 1015 S. 19th St. at 3:13 p.m. on Nov. 5. The mother is the former Corrine Benzing. Pfc. Janke is presently serving in Vietnam.

MESSERSMITH — At 11:29 a.m. on Nov. 6, a son, Scott Michael, weighing 5 pounds and 9 ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Messersmith of Wilson Rte. 1. Mrs. Messersmith was Lorna Gagnon.

Chairman Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek — sponsor of several of his own exemption bills — criticized the Democrats and GOP colleague Anthony Stamm votes to report out the sales and use tax bills.

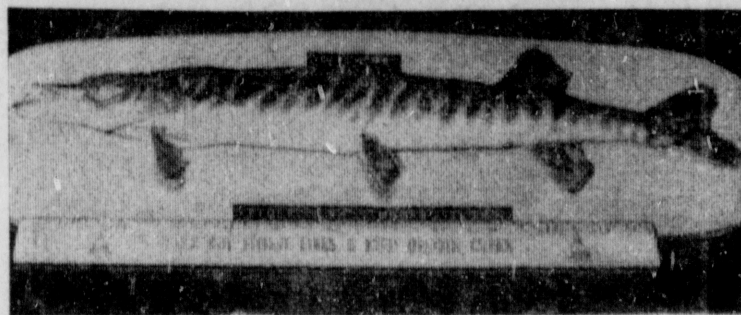

"They're going to clobber agriculture and clobber industry and pass the increase on to the consumer — this little man they're trying to protect," he declared.

The governor's proposed 5-cent — a — pack increase in the state cigarette tax remained in committee, as did several other bills to remove various tax exemptions.

Milliken, obviously happy over the action, said he was "encouraged," and suggested the tax bills could "trigger other action" on his package.

Many senators had expressed reluctance to act on any of Milliken's spending bills until they knew where the money was coming from. The entire program appeared in jeopardy earlier this week as the taxation committee tangled over what to do and when to do it.

As late as Thursday afternoon, Sen. Gordon Rockwell, R-Mount Morris — one of three Republicans on the five-member committee — opposed action on the governor's proposals.

THIS TIGER MUSKIE measuring 14 and a half inches in length was hatched five months earlier in Thompson Hatchery.

New Tiger Muskies Show Rapid Growth

THOMPSON — Tiger muskellunge reared at the state fish hatchery here have shown extremely rapid growth.

Keith Pratt, biologist in charge of the hatchery in Schoolcraft County, said tiger muskies hatched here last spring grew to 14 and a half inches in length in only five months.

They are a cross between a northern pike male and a muskellunge female.

Pratt said 58,900 tiger muskies hatched here and have been planted in Upper Peninsula waters this year.

Of this number, 51,900 were planted as fry (one to two inches in length). Boston Pond north of Hancock received 40,000 of them. The others were released in Plymouth Lake, 10,200; Marion Lake, 1,500, and Elbow Lake, 200 all in Gogebic County.

The other plantings involved fingerlings (four to six inches long). They were planted as follows: 3,500 in Caribou Lake in Chippewa County; 1,500 in Kaks Lake in Luce County and 2,000 in Gulliver Lake in Schoolcraft County.

Plan 'Roof Party':

Celebration To 'Cap' Vertical Work On Tower

A "capping" ceremony marking the completion of a major phase of the Senior Citizens apartment building in Escanaba will be held atop the roof of the structure's 18th floor at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 14.

Nathan Rakita, Milwaukee, partner in the firm of Blumenfeld and Rakita, developers of the $2.6 million project, said the ceremony will mark completion of the vertical structure to a height of 160 feet—the tallest building of its kind north of Milwaukee.

The building will provide 176 apartment units for the elderly citizens of low income in the Escanaba area, it is being financed by a federal loan, and will be completed for occupancy by July 1, 1970.

Floor A Week

The celebration to be held next Friday is sponsored by Blumenfeld & Rakita. Last year the firm of developers completed and delivered to the Milwaukee Housing Authority 13-story twin towers totaling 251 units.

The City of Escanaba and its Housing Commission, with John Gannon the director of senior citizens housing, obtained federal approval for the project loan and the construction of the single tower in the 500 block, Ludington St., began in late March this year.

Miss America Coming

At the peak of construction progress a floor a week was being erected, a schedule necessary to complete the vertical construction before winter weather halts activity. The structure is made of steel, concrete and brick.

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

The exterior brick work is hoped to be completed by the contractors, the Stevens Construction Co. of Milwaukee, and the building enclosed and heat introduced into the building within the next several weeks. The interior work can then proceed throughout the winter months.

The dedication of the senior citizens' tower dwelling will be marked by the appearance in Escanaba of Miss America—Pamela Ann Eldred of Birmingham, Mich.

City Manager George Harvey has received assurance from Miss America Pageant that Miss America — whose parents were originally from Crystal Falls in the Upper Peninsula—has been tentatively scheduled to participate in the dedication ceremony at Escanaba on July 13, 1970.

VFW To Meet; Veterans Day Services Set

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Hiawatha Post 2998, will meet Monday evening at 8 at the post clubrooms.

Several important items will be brought up for discussion, according to Marvin Ducheny, post commander.

Life membership fee changes and dues renewal will be among the topics to be discussed.

Ducheny reported that former State VFW Commander Pat Foley will conduct a membership drive in the 14th and 15th Districts on Nov. 27-28-29 and is looking forward to having Hiawatha Post 100 per cent paid up by that time.

A Memorial Service is planned for Veterans Day, Nov. 11, under the direction of the Veterans Council. Ducheny asks all veterans to make an effort to take part in the event. "This year, more than ever, we need the backing of veterans if President Nixon's Vietnam war policy is going to succeed. Fly a flag, drive with lights on, 'do your thing,' the commander said.

The Memorial Services will be held at the corner of Ludington and 11th St. with taps set for 11 a.m. All post members are asked to wear their caps to the services.

Timber, Inc., To Make Report At Rapid River

Woods operators of the area are invited to a meeting Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. at Jack's Restaurant in Rapid River when Timber, Inc., will present another in a series of sessions to acquaint producers with some of the new mechanized operations which are being used to advantage in other logging areas of the country and in Canada.

A representative of the State Department of Labor will give details of the new safety standards for woods operations now in effect.

The Rapid River meeting will be directed by Peter Grieves, general manager, and William Henriksen, field manager, for Timber, Inc., a project designed to assist producers in all phases of woods operations to upgrade the economic level of the industry.

Grieves and Henriksen have been making a study, through field trips, of new machines being used in Canada and some of the Southern states, and have filmed operations of these which they believe have adaptability to northern Michigan conditions. Following the presentations, a question and answer period is scheduled.

All producers in the Escanaba-Manistique-Powers area, and all others interested will be welcome.

Timber, Inc., is a project of the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, which adopted a recommendation made by a Michigan task force headed by Harold Vanlerberghe, of Escanaba, to make a complete study and a field demonstration where necessary of the prospects for greater efficiency in woods operations, in development of safety standards, in movement of product to shipper, and, hopefully, in stepping up the profit factor.

Trouble On Gridiron

The racial problems which have plagued the United States and its educational process have erupted in an area where many people would have least expected them — on the collegiate football field.

Three teams in the Big Ten — Iowa, Wisconsin and now Indiana — have had their problems. Trouble also is rumored at Minnesota. The University of Wyoming suspended its black players when they protested the racist policies of opponent Brigham Young University and the University of Washington played its game against UCLA last week without its Negro players.

In the most recent incident, Coach Johnny Pont at Indiana suspended 10 black players, several of them starters, after they boycotted practice for two days. Four other Negro players reported back to practice after missing the first day and will remain with the team.

There was no explanation of the boycott offered by the players, except for an earlier remark by one of the suspended players that there was some dissatisfaction among the black players about the way they were being treated, and no specific comment from the coaching staff on what triggered the boycott.

But at other colleges, the complaints have been heard that white coaches have not given black athletes equal playing time with their white teammates.

The situation, while possible, is difficult to believe in today's highly competitive world of college football where a coach's job often hangs on the won-loss record at the end of the season. If a black athlete would get the job done better than a white athlete, what possible reason would a coach have for giving preferential treatment to the white player?

College football is big business, played for big crowds and with big money at stake. Most of the athletes wearing a jersey on a Saturday afternoon were recruited and are on athletic scholarship at the recommendation of the very coaching staff they accuse of discrimination.

And black athletes, in some instances even more so than white athletes, often hold the key to a successful season. Even colleges and universities in the south are learning that to compete successfully with teams from other areas in the country they must have Negro players on their teams.

On the other hand, the black athletes generally are not cut from the same mold as some of their more militant brothers in the cities or those leading campus-wide demonstrations. If they are willing to risk the loss of an athletic scholarship worth several thousand dollars to emphasize a disagreement they must have valid complaints.

A national sports magazine detailed some of them in a series of articles last year, but one problem which has emerged with regularity has been the lack of black members of coaching staffs. While some schools have named Negro assistants in the past several years, few, if any, of the major colleges have a black head coach.

And while white coaches may vow and practice objectivity in choosing between the abilities of white and black athletes on the playing field, a black coach almost without question could be expected to develop greater personal rapport with black players in off-the-field problems.

Whatever the difficulties, however, it is disturbing to see the split grow so wide that boycotts result. Certainly there must be some other approach. Player boycotts and suspensions can do no real service to the sport.

The Family Lawyer

May You Kiss The Driver?

When a passenger is injured in an auto accident, the law naturally considers whether the driver had been guilty of careless driving. But at the same time, it also weighs the conduct of the passenger himself. Had he too been guilty of negligence?

Take this case: A young man was out driving with a girl he had just met when she suddenly leaned over and gave him a kiss. Momentarily discombobulated, he lost control of the car and smashed into a telephone pole.

The girl was injured, and later filed suit for damages. However, the jury decided she also was guilty of negligence — for taking the young man's mind off his driving.

In fact, a passenger may be held negligent not only for thoughtless acts but even for thoughtless words. For example:

Just as a car was nearing a dangerous curve, a passenger held up a bottle of beer and exclaimed:

"How do you get this darned bottle open?" This, too, was enough to divert the driver and cause a crackup. And it was enough, also, in a courtroom afterward, to pin a "negligent" label on the thirsty passenger.

On the other hand, a rider need not sit in stoic silence. He has a right to assume that, despite minor distractions, the driver will show a reasonable amount of good judgment and self control.

Thus, in another accident case, the court said no negligence in the fact that a girl passenger had been talking with her companion about where to spend the evening.

Nor was it considered negligence, in still another case, for a woman to join the driver in singing a song. As one judge put it:

"It cannot be said as a matter of law that she had any reason to expect the defendant would abandon all care in the operation of his car."

Peninsula Potpourri

The Keweenaw County Board of Supervisors authorized sale of the Keweenaw Park Resort for $150,000. Edward Hepting, board chairman, said the sprawling resort estate will be sold to J. R. THE MANTLE OF THE COURT

Tax Incentives Give Motivation To Nation

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Whenever I hear anyone say that human beings should do things for "the common good," I mark him down as kind-hearted but soft-headed, even as I used to be in the days before I became an industrial reporter for a business magazine.

People, as one quickly learns by watching them at work, aren't motivated to do things for high-sounding abstractions. The way to get them moving toward good social ends is to lure them into doing something for humanity as a by-product of pursuing their own self-interest.

Subsidizing people to fall in line with a national priority doesn't quite work the trick. A subsidy is soon accepted as a right, the assumption being that the politician who granted it in the first place will surely renew it before standing for re-election. Subsidies breed inefficiency, or the misallocation of effort.

We have tried to subsidize farmers to reduce crops, but the money has had the opposite effect (the farmers spend their acre-reduction money to buy better seeds, better fertilizer, and better machinery, which only added to the problem of over-production). Subsidized housing hasn't worked any better; the subsidized community soon becomes the slum of the future, for there is no incentive to cherish it and keep it up.

On the other hand, a tax incentive always works for the simple reason that self-interest is an unfailing motor. Jaye Dyer, executive vice president of the Apache Corp. of Minneapolis, has seen it pay off in the oil and gas discoveries made by appealing to the self-interest of individuals who have taken advantage of the oil depletion allowance. As long as we wanted more oil, this was the way to get it.

Dyer is a canny man. He wouldn't let me pump him on the subject of his own extractive industry specialty. Evidently he thought it would be counter-productive if, as an oil man, he tried to make the case for tax incentives in his own business.

What he did want to talk about was harnessing tax incentives to the solution of what Pat Moynihan's Urban Affairs crew in the White House calls the "environmental problem." Dyer notes that the middle classes have ceased to be home renters and have become home owners largely because they have the incentive of an income tax interest deduction on mortgage payments to stimulate them.

But the lower income groups, who lack the capital to make down payments on homes even under the most favorable circumstances, can't take advantage of the interest deduction incentive. (Maybe they don't pay taxes anyway.) Accelerated depreciation for low-cost housing as provided in the House version of the tax reform bill, is a step in the right direction, but it isn't enough to galvanize a builder into action. What is needed is a high-powered lure to get builders to make the "environmental problem" their own.

How would it be done? The Dyer proposals, as submitted for the consideration of Housing and Urban Development

Secretary George Romney, include:

1. The investment credit provision which has stimulated industrial expansion should be applied to all housing projects for low-income families.

2. Land for low-income housing should be depreciated on an annual basis for tax purposes.

3. Some of the income from rent should be made exempt from taxes. This would move capital from the home-purchase field into the now moribund business of building for renters.

4. Mortgage money could be obtained on more favorable terms if interest on loans for low-cost housing were tax free.

5. The 20 per cent first year's write-off, which now applies to other fields, could be adapted to housing problem areas.

The virtue of taking the incentive approach to the end of encouraging builders to lick the "environmental problem" is that it would enlist human selfishness in the cause of a high national priority. The same sort of tack could be taken in the fight on air and water pollution. For example, if General Motors were given a tax break on every proven smog-killing exhaust system sold with a GM car, some new Boss Kettering would come up with a successful anti-smog device in short order.

When subsidies are offered, says Dyer, only a few government bureaucrats focus on a problem. When a tax incentive is the bait, the creative talents of thousands of profit-motivated individuals are enlisted without an argument.

Equity Kicker Appears To Be 'Clinging Vine'

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If builders had their way the so-called equity kicker would be kicked from here to eternity. But, since inflation is a reality of this life, the kicker isn't about to be dismissed in commercial real estate deals.

"The first thing a builder says when he comes into my office," says James Houlihan, a real estate investment specialist, "is, 'Get me a loan without a kicker.'" Increasingly, however, it can't be done.

A kicker means that the lender no longer is satisfied with lending money for a fixed rate of interest. He wants a piece of the action, such as partial ownership or a percentage of the gross rents.

Many builders are furious about it, feeling that it amounts almost to extortion. But lenders are equally insistent that, with inflation eroding the return on fixed investments, they cannot afford to make conventional loans.

Among the first lenders to adopt the idea were life insurance companies, a bit of irony when you consider that they above all other institutions spread the gospel of the fixed investment being the certain way to security.

Beginning several years ago they demanded part ownership of projects on which they lent money. Commercial banks, barred by law from equity holdings, have instead stressed a percentage of rents during the past year or so.

The net effect is to permit lenders to charge borrowers far in excess of the going interest rate. And the methods used are limited, said a spokesman for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, only by the imagination.

Not all bankers agree that the kicker is a good way to beat the uncertainties created by inflation. In fact, some fear that a once inviolate principle—that the lending and equity functions not be mixed—is being abused, and that stiffer regulation might ensue.

Nevertheless, the Mortgage Finance Committee of the American Bankers' Association went so far as to suggest that the ABA come out in favor of banks being permitted to own real estate. The resolution was turned down.

For some banking institutions the limitation is meaningless anyway. By forming a holding company, a bank can operate a mortgage lending firm that is completely free to engage in equity financing.

The equity trend has significance for a much larger part of the population than builders, for it means that some of the nation's largest institutions are convinced that inflation will be here for a long while.

No longer do the insurers and banks have faith that the economy will be stable, and that fixed returns, such as from ordinary mortgage loans, will give them a fair return.

"None of us likes to admit it," said a well known banking official who asked that his name not be used, "but the fact is we feel inflation will be around a long time. Even if we get down from 6 per cent to 3 per cent, it won't be easy to reduce the rate from there."

What particularly irritates builders is that as they reduce the size of their mortgage loans, their payments to the bank of ten grow larger. The reason: The bank gets a share of the rents, and rents usually rise.

Many builders have made no secret of their anger and have told lenders that as soon as they get the upper hand—that is, when money becomes easier and less expensive—they'll refuse to share the action.

Though it has slipped to second place in population, New York state still holds a lead over California in the number of manufacturing establishments located within its borders. According to Dun's Market Identifiers, a marketing service of Dun & Bradstreet, there are 46,901 manufacturing firms doing business in the Empire State compared with 36,053 in California.

BIDDING QUIZ

You are the dealer, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠K8742 ♥AQJ106 ♦Q ♣A5
2. ♠J5 ♥A732 ♦AK96 ♣Q82
3. ♠AJ862 ♥10 ♦Q4 ♣AK953
4. ♠AK93 ♥AK74 ♦5 ♣AQ62

1. One spade. Many players bid according to the strength of a suit rather than its length, but this is a habit it would be wise to discard at the earliest possible moment.

With a holding of two five-card suits, it is generally best to follow the widely accepted principle of bidding the higher-ranking one first. There is a good reason for this. Let's suppose you come from the school that opens a heart on this hand. If partner responds one no-trump, two clubs or two diamonds, you presumably bid two spades, but how can you possibly expect partner to guess that the suits are of equal length?

Partner would be much more likely to assume you have five hearts and four spades, and this reasonable assumption might easily lead to the wrong contract. It is usually better to conform to well-established principles. They tend to keep you out of trouble.

2. One diamond. If you reversed the heart and diamond holdings, it would be proper to open with a heart, but, the way things stand, you should open with a diamond. The governing principle is that it is better to avoid bidding a weak four-card major if it can possibly be managed. The strength-of-suit principle applies much more to two four-card suits than to two five-card suits.

3. One club. Just to confuse matters still more, here you should open with a club rather than a spade, even though they are both five-card suits. This deviation from the general rule is well founded, and is simply a further example of how the exception proves the rule.

If you opened with a spade and partner responded two hearts or diamonds, you would have to ascend to the three level to show clubs. This space-consuming sequence can be avoided by opening with a club and bidding a spade over a heart or a diamond. You later rebid the spades to show their five-card length.

4. One club. This follows the general rule that, with three four-card suits you open in the suit below the singleton. As a result, it becomes possible to show all three suits cheaply if partner responds in diamonds and then rebids them. This method of approach keeps the bidding low, and at the same time gives partner the maximum amount of information about your hand.

Robert Hall, 430 18th St., is heading a movement for the organization of a company of Military Cadets in this city. It is his idea to enlist the co-operation of boys of the city between the ages of 14 and 17 years and then secure the service of some military man to drill them. The young man has already received much encouragement and has a number of boys lined up for the company. As soon as 50 of them have signed up to become members of the organization, it is their purpose to get a hall, which they now have in mind, and begin drilling. Several former service men have volunteered their aid in instructing the boys and it appears the movement will be a success.

Ann Landers

It May Take Time To Open Hubby's Wallet

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's carry-home pay is $188 a week — not counting overtime. He gives me $50 a week to buy groceries, pay for the dry cleaning, buy whatever gifts the family must give. We have five children and two of them are old enough to receive an allowance. I give them $2.50 a week.

I know my husband has to pay taxes, interest on a loan, mortgage payments, insurance, clothing and drug bills, and keep the car up, but he never accounts for where his money goes and I am sure there must be something left over.

We have had several arguments about this and I always lose. Is there any law I could point to that makes it mandatory for a husband to give his wife a set percentage of his earnings? — Tightwad's Wife

Dear T.: A husband can be hauled into court for non-support. But your husband is supporting you so forget it. The wife who has trouble getting money out of a husband who is gainfully employed almost invariably has other marital problems. If you will work at improving the total relationship and become friends instead of opponents, you'll find Old Tightwad less reluctant to part with a buck.

C&H 'Iron Horse' Headed For Museum

ANMEEK—It sat elevated on a railroad flatcar with an expanse of pale November morning sky for a backdrop and if its large, round headlamp were capable of winking, it might have, as if to proudly say, "Look at me!"

Camera shutters clicked almost in unison as a bill of lading exchanged hands and a mining company official, smiling broadly, told a museum curator, "You've got yourself an iron horse."

A patriarch of transportation and the last of its line, the 96-year-old "C & H Torch Lake" steam locomotive is en route from the Copper Country to the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, riding the rails again, but under the power of one of its modern successors, rather than its own steam.

The 1873 vintage machine—all 36 tons of it—has been donated to the museum by Universal Oil Products Co. Cecil H. Suter, general manager of the company's Calumet Division, met here with museum curator Leslie Henry to make the final arrangements for its trip along the Soo Line and Penn Central system to Dearborn.

One of about 700 built by the Mason Machinery Co., Taunton, Mass., between 1853 and 1890, the Torch Lake is the sole survivor. It was styled according to Mason's double truck patent, which allowed the frame and running gear to swivel and negotiate sharp curves. The locomotive's historical value and significance is in the intactness of the original double truck construction. In 1912, the original track gauge of 4' 1" changed to the standard 4' 8 1/2" gauge.

The Torch Lake continued to haul ore from the Keweenaw Peninsula's C & H mines until the company decided to preserve the unit in 1932.

Wm. John Foster, now chief of the company's security police, was a fireman on the engine when it made its last "merry ride" from Phoenix to a storage shed in Ahmeek.

"We were pulled by the Copper Range freight, on the tail end because of no air, back of the caboose—and they gave us a merry ride. When we left Phoenix and crossed over the creek bridge and main highway the engineer blew a long whistle for this was the last of the steamers north of the Calumet and Hecla road."

At least a dozen former engineers on the Torch Lake have since gone to that Great Railroad in the sky and now the iron horse itself heads for a final resting place, with the poignant sounds of its whistle only in the minds of those who can still remember.

"IRON HORSE" — Michigan will remain the home of the Calumet Division's 96-year-old locomotive Torch Lake, which rides piggyback aboard one of its modern successors to join other transportation treasures at Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum at Dearborn. Donated to the museum by Universal Oil Products Co., the 36-ton unit is the sole survivor of 700 similar engines built by the Mason

Machine Works between 1853 and 1890. Cecil Suter, left, general manager of the company's Calumet Division, and Leslie Henry, the museum's curator of transportation, review final shipping arrangements as the steam engine is readied for departure via the Soo Line and Penn Central Railways to Dearborn. State Record Deer Reported

IRON RIVER—A new state record white-tailed deer trophy head has been reported here.

The head scored 178 points and was entered in Boone and Crockett Club competition by the present owner, Joseph Brzozowski of Iron River.

The deer was shot Nov. 18, 1939, by his father, Felix Brzozowski, also of Iron River, while hunting three and a half miles west of Gibbs City in Iron County.

Duane K. Wenzel, Crystal Falls, game habitat biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, an official Boone and Crockett scorer, said the previous state record head was a trophy shot by Paul Korhonen of Keweenaw Bay near Baraga County in 1945. Korhonen's buck, which was shot in Baraga County, scored 176 and 3/4 points.

Wenzel said Joseph Brzozowski had entered the record head in national competition in the absence of his father, who left here in September to spend the winter in Florida.

The state record for an abnormal (non-typical) whitetail head also is held by an Iron River hunter and also was shot in the Gibbs City area. Ben Komolevich shot the buck three miles southeast of Gibbs City in 1942. Wenzel scored it at 212 points.

Girl, 7, Bitten Near St. Anne's, Poodle Sought

Escanaba police today were attempting to locate a white poodle dog which bit a seven-year-old girl Thursday afternoon.

Officers said the dog apparently belongs to a family who drove to St. Anne's School in a beige-colored station wagon to pickup children after school.

Sherry Sorby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sorby, Rte. 2, Escanaba, said she was bitten while in the parking lot of St. Anne's school.

Officers said the dog must be located to determine whether or not it has had proper anti-rabies vaccination.

Solon Fearing Phone Rate Hike If Plan Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman says a government-business decision to cut interstate long distance telephone rates could end up costing phone users more, not less.

Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., says he may try to block what he called an "outrageous deception" by the Federal Communications Commission and the giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

AT&T said Wednesday it had reached agreement with the FCC to cut its interstate phone rates by nearly $240 million starting early next year. At the same time, the FCC said it would allow the company to boost its profits.

Bingham charged in a Thursday speech to the House that AT&T will use the FCC ruling to win approval of pending rate increases in 16 states and the District of Columbia to more than make up for the cut in interstate rates.

Requested rate increases for New York State alone would, if approved, bring in $175 million in added revenues, Bingham said. And, if the increases for local rates in the other states are okayed, it would increase the figure to at least $300 million, he said.

Search On For Racine Plane Crash Victims

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — The Coast Guard waited for heavy fog to lift today before resuming the search for seven Pennsylvania men lost when a private jet plane crashed into Lake Michigan Thursday.

A team of skindivers prepared to join in the search. Water in the crash area is about 50 feet deep.

The plane, a Learjet 23 owned by Mack Trucks, Inc., of Allentown, Pa., crashed about two miles off shore, apparently while making an instrument approach to the Horlick - Racine Airport.

Debris recovered by the Coast Guard included parts of the plane, a man's shoe, part of a sports coat, and two small pieces of what appeared to be human flesh.

David Buckman, chief of the Federal Aviation Administration tower at Milwaukee's General Mitchell Field, said the tower was guiding the plane for an instrument landing at Racine.

"Everything was as normal as it could be," said Buckman, noting that the plane was right in line with the runway path when it disappeared from the radar screen.

Buckman said visibility was reported to be about three miles, but there was dense ground fog.

A spokesman for the Mack firm said that the plane, with five executives and two pilots aboard, left Allentown on a business trip to Racine. He said the plane touched down at Benton Harbor, Mich., after fog thwarted an initial attempt to land at Racine. It then crossed Lake Michigan again for another attempt to land in the Wisconsin city.

The pilot of the jet was identified as James R. Simmons, 40, of Bethlehem. A Mack spokesman said he was a 20-year flying veteran who had been with the firm for three and one-half years. The co-pilot was George K. Strunk, 28, also of Bethlehem.

Lawyer Planning New Motions In Chicago Trial

CHICAGO (AP) — A San Francisco lawyer planned to present new motions today in behalf of Bobby Seale, sentenced by Judge Julius J. Hoffman to four years in prison for contempt of court.

The nature of the motions to be offered by the attorney, Francis J. McTernan, was not disclosed in advance. Hoffman denied McTernan's motions Thursday to vacate the contempt order and to set bond for Seale pending a possible appeal.

Seale, 33, national chairman of the Black Panther party, was ruled in contempt Wednesday because of a series of courtroom disruptions at the trial of Seale and seven others charged with conspiracy to provoke riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Seale's outbursts largely were protests against a ruling that he could not act as his own lawyer. His attorney, Charles R. Garry, long-time counsel for the Black Panthers, was unable to be present because of recent surgery.

McTernan is Garry's law partner.

U.P. Guardsmen Asked To Counter Anti-War Group

All Upper Peninsula National Guard units have been asked to participate in a nationwide counter-demonstration against anti-war activities scheduled for mid-November, according to Lt. Col. Richard L. Pascoe, commander of the 107th Engineer Battalion.

Responding to a call from the Chief of the National Guard Bureau for support from the nation's 500,000 national guardsmen, Pascoe announced that his organization of over 700 men representing the Upper Peninsula will promote the movement.

"I have asked that each Guardsman follow the plan suggested by the National Guard Bureau, which is to drive with automobile headlights on during the day, display the American flag at their homes, and leave porchlights burning around the clock during the period between Nov. 11 and 16," Pascoe said.

"Primarily, this counter-demonstration is a means of showing our support for our President, who is also our Commander-in-Chief," he noted. "However, I feel it is also a timely opportunity for those who are proud of this country, and our flag, to show our communities that patriotism is not just a word, but that it has real meaning."

Speaking of the critics, Pascoe said "There will be those in high circles, and those with motives much different from our own, who will ridicule the Guard taking an active part in this counter-demonstration, and they will say we are not really interested in peace in Vietnam. But General of the Army Douglas A. MacArthur said 'On the contrary, the soldier, above all other people prays for peace, for he must suffer and bear the deepest wounds and scars of war.'"

"I am mindful of the heritage of the 107th Engineer Battalion," Pascoe said. "Over the years, our Upper Peninsula guardsmen have served in three wars, and have stood ready during peacetime to serve again. I urge all members to show the colors, and support our Country now. I would welcome the endorsement and participation of veterans groups and private citizens alike in this endeavor."

Employment Up To Record Peak Of 70.6 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's total employment edged up in October to an all-time high of 70.6 million, on a seasonally adjusted basis, and unemployment declined slightly following the big jump of a month before, the government said today.

But the average work week, overtime work and average pay all declined, signaling a possible economic turnaround later, said Asst. Commissioner Harold Goldstein of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The total number of unemployed last month dropped about 119,000 and the national jobless rate dropped from 4 per cent to 3.9 per cent of the civilian labor force. The bureau adjusts the figures in line with usual seasonal employment changes.

The jobless total in October included 906,000 men for a 2.4 per cent unemployment rate, 1.1 million women for a 4 per cent rate and 836,000 teen-agers for a 13 per cent rate.

Goldstein said the significance of the figures was the increase of 525,000 unemployed since last December, when the jobless rate was at a post-Korean war low of 3.3 per cent.

MACE Used In Ruckus At Bar

A melee in which a can of MACE allegedly was used to assault one person and scatter several others was reported late Thursday afternoon to State Police by George Berry, 35, 425 Michigan Ave., Gladstone.

MACE is a gas, similar to tear gas, which is used by some police forces to subdue a person without using physical violence.

According to Berry, he and seven or eight other customers were chased out of the Buck Inn Thursday afternoon by an elderly man who was aiming a can of MACE at them.

The man came into the bar and began to argue with several customers, Berry told police. Following the argument, the man went outside and returned with a can of MACE.

Aiming the can of MACE at the patrons, the man forced them outside where he allegedly sprayed the MACE into the face of Berry and then punched him, police reported.

Berry was advised to contact the prosecuting attorney. As of this morning no charges have been filed.

Thurman Arnold, Famed American Trust Buster, Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thurman W. Arnold, famed trust buster of the New Deal era, died today at his home in nearby Alexandria, Va. He was 78.

Arnold was a partner in one of Washington's prestigious law firms—Arnold and Porter.

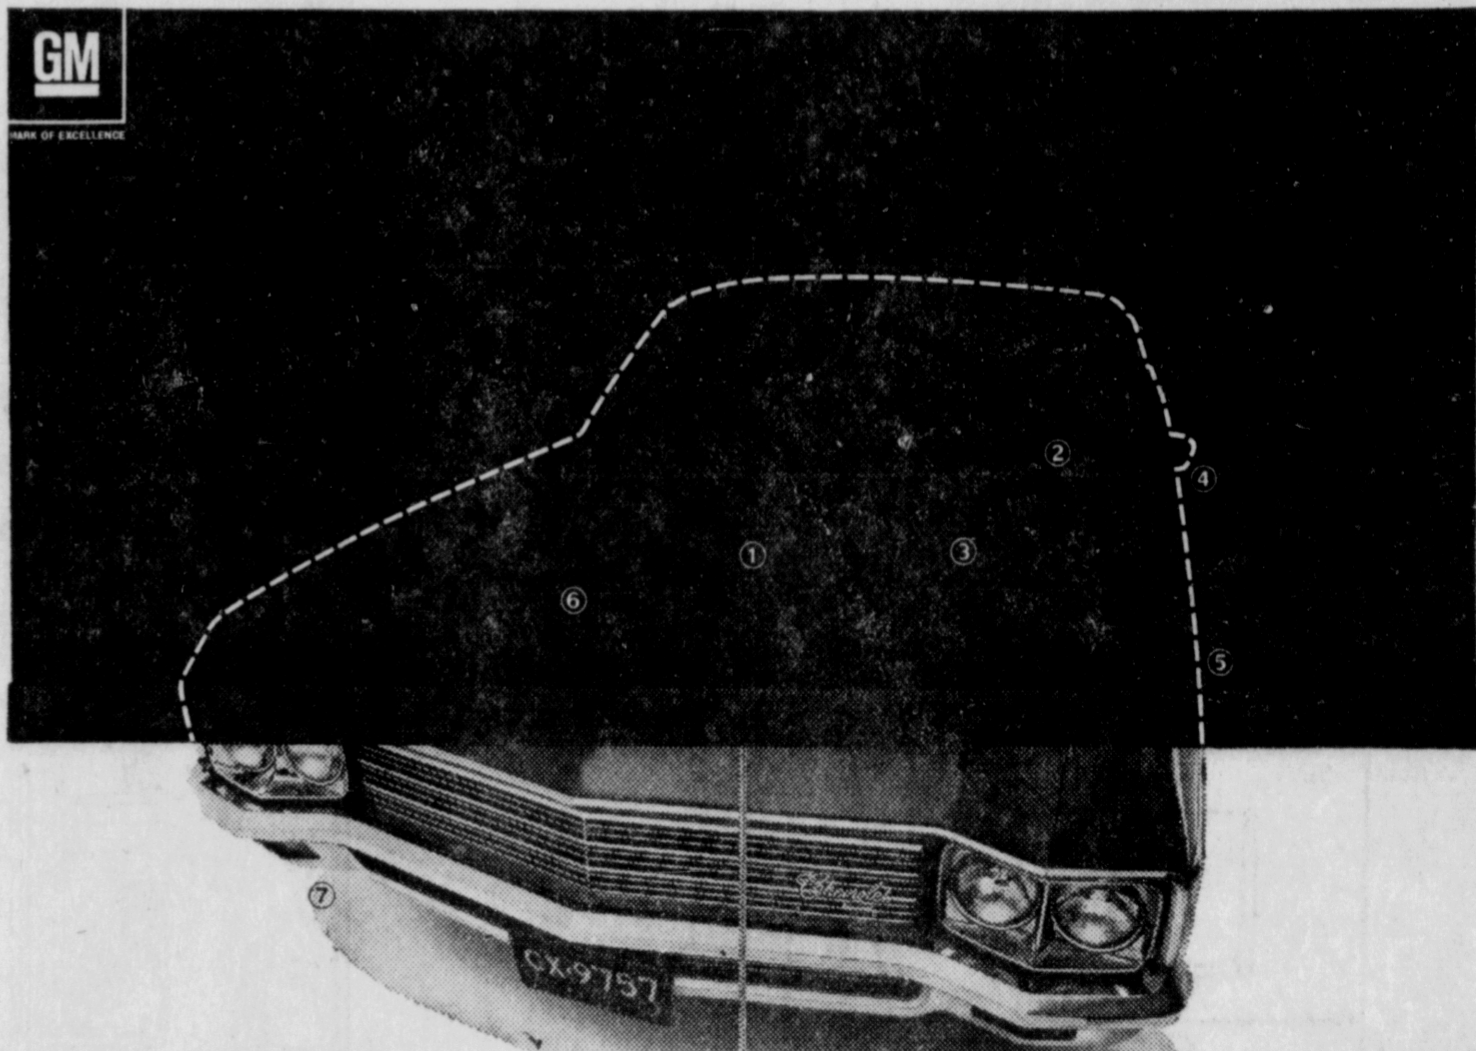

As an assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's antitrust division from March 1938 to March 1943, Arnold instituted 230 suits—more than the total in the previous 50-year history of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Earlier, Arnold resigned a lifetime job as a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia because it provided no competitive activity.

As a trust buster, Arnold grappled with giant business interests, the medical profession, labor unions, food producers, and even other government agencies.

Arnold said he considered that his most important suits were those against the American Medical Association, Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Associated Press and building trade unions.

Impala's hidden persuaders:

① 350-cu.-in. engine

A new more powerful standard 250-hp V8 makes the 1970 Impala move with all the more assurance. On good ol' regular gas.

⑤ Inner fenders

Up inside every fender is another fender to protect against slush and mud and help keep your Impala looking young.

② Anti-theft column lock

A locking system is built right into the steering column. When you take your key with you, you lock not only your ignition but your steering wheel as well.

⑥ Flush and dry

We build the car so that rain and wash water can run down through the inside of the rocker panels, then out. Air follows to do the drying.

③ Aluminized exhaust system

It simply means that your original muffler, tailpipe and exhaust are going to last longer than you'd probably expect them to. Fair enough?

⑦ Full Coil suspension

Huge coil springs at all four wheels are four big reasons why a Chevrolet Impala rides smoother and quieter than a low-priced car has any right to.

④ Side guard beams

They look like highway guard rails, and they're built into both sides of the car for extra protection in case of impact. Not too many cars have them.

On the move.

House Expands As Needed

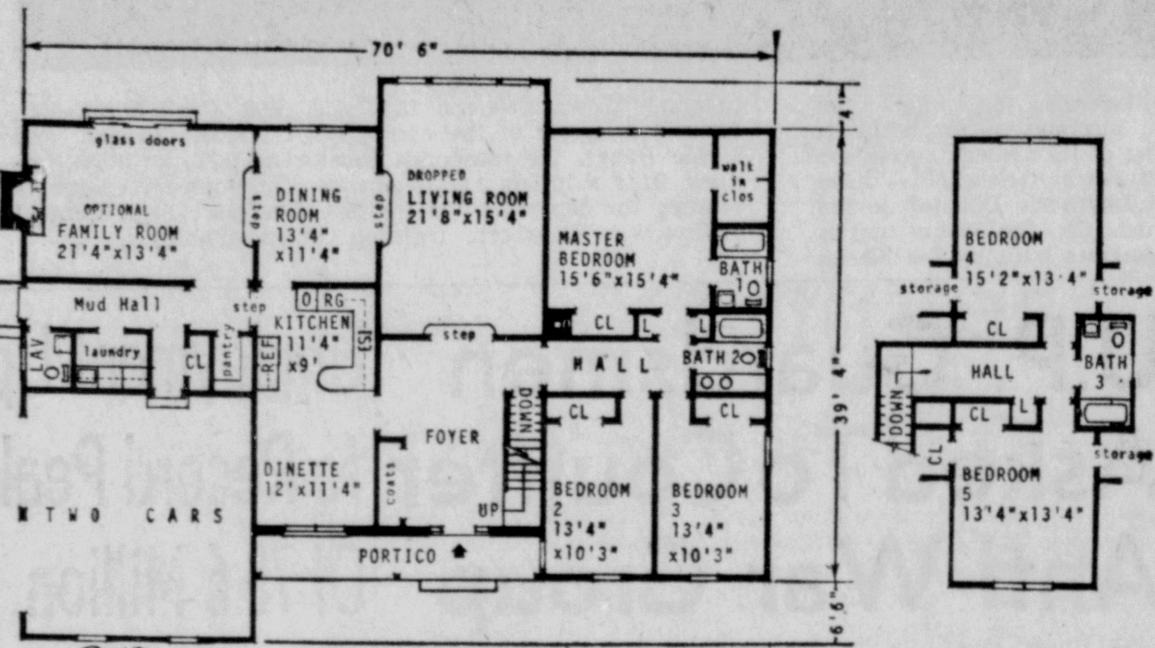

By ANDY LANG

This is basically a one-floor house with an exterior effect that offers future expansion possibilities — either upwards or sideways, or both.

Architect Herbert C. Struppman has found that the ever-popular farmhouse look lends itself to this expansive planning and extra-space bonus. It maintains the traditional exterior that is attractive in a well-planned community and offers a growing family the space needed for the present living scheme as well as for the future. For instance, the owners can have three, four or five bedrooms, as they wish, with one or two of them finished when the house is built or at a later date. And they can dispense with the indicated family room with no alteration in the front facade, since it is located to the rear of the two-car garage.

OPTIONAL FAMILY ROOM has fireplace flanked by built-in bookshelves and sliding glass doors leading to relaxation area.

FLOOR PLANS: Dropped living room at rear of house is 21' 8" long and is immediately visible from front foyer. Family room can be built as shown or left out entirely. Another possibility is to turn the area into terrace or enclosed porch.

The rooms in Design S-18 are well-proportioned. Note especially the large amount of wall space in the almost-square master bedroom and the front adding to the entrance appeal.

Stretching 21', the combined kitchen-dinette is well-placed for the woman of the house. She can handle the informal meals in the dinette section on one side of the appliances and the formal meals in the dining room on the other side. The kitchen is also close to the optional family room, a convenience for the serving of snacks. The plans call for the family room to have sliding glass doors to the rear and a fireplace. If the family room is skipped, the chimney location would be moved.

A side entrance to the house leads to a mud hall, a lavatory, the laundry area, a closet and a pantry next to the kitchen. There is also a door to the garage, making it convenient to move groceries from the auto to the pantry and kitchen. Three bedrooms are on the main floor. The master bedroom has a private bath and two closets, one a walk-in. There is a hall bath, two linen closets in the bedroom hall and a closet in each of the two other bedrooms.

For the expansion area upstairs, the upper gambrel is dormered. As planned by the architect, there are two bedrooms, four closets, a full bathroom and extra storage under the eaves. But this space actually can be utilized as desired if there is no need for extra bedrooms. It might be divided into a den and study or any other combination or it can be left unfinished during the original construction and finished when and if necessary.

Farm Income

LANSING (AP)—The index of prices received by Michigan farmers on Oct. 15 was 267 per cent of the 1910-14 average, the same as for mid-September but up nine points from mid-October of last year. Higher prices for beef cattle and hogs plus smaller gains for corn, milk and wheat mostly accounted for the rise from a year ago, the State Crop Reporting Service said.

REPORT ON JAILS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—A report by the Kentucky Crime Commission says 64 per cent of the state's 170 local jails either are unfit or obsolete. However, security and food received comparatively good ratings.

GAMBREL ROOF LINES over bedroom wing at left of house permits expansion area upstairs to have more usable space than would be available with conventional roof design. Portico between bedroom wing and garage provides pleasant entranceway.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

An expansion attic offers a growing family the opportunity to add extra rooms without the necessity of extending the exterior dimensions of the house. This means less cost, since there is no need to construct outside walls, and keep intact the space and landscaping outside the house.

The term expansion attic is often used loosely. What it actually means is an area under the roof that is high enough and wide enough to make into living quarters, as distinguished from the low and narrow attic usable only for storage and then at some inconvenience. Also, it usually has a stairway, whereas the low attic has only an opening for access.

Finishing an attic is often the first major project of a home owner, generally because it can be accomplished with the use of ordinary tools and ready-made materials. A knowledge of simple construction, plus adherence to the instructions that accompany the various items, can bring reasonable good results.

A little time spent in measuring and considerably more time spent in selecting the proper materials can pay big dividends. Measure everything twice, then put the figures on paper and make an outline, no matter how rough, of the planned dimensions.

When you begin looking for wall, floor and ceiling materials, you'll have to decide between what you would like to have and what you can afford. In some cases, if you're lucky, the two will coincide. And make the tour of lumber yards, building supply dealers, etc., just before you're ready to begin work.

Don't rely on the fact that you did some looking a year or two ago and already know what you want. New products, styles and colors are constantly being introduced, and you may find something you didn't even know existed or, at the least, a variation of something you saw previously. This 11th-hour shopping expedition will prevent you from saying later, after the attic is finished, "If I had known, I would have bought that instead of what I used."

The constant question — should I buy prefinished or unfinished wall materials? — has no pat answer. The prefinished products, and there are some beautiful ones, save you time and work. The unfinished wood, gypsum boards, hardboards and the like are less expensive and enable you to obtain the precise colors you want.

If you have to put down floor boards or an underlayment for resilient tiles or sheet flooring, do it first. Then forget the floor and go ahead with the ceiling and walls, saving the final floor procedures — such as installing flooring — for last. If there is any plumbing work to be done, have the plumber tell you what should be done first. Electrical installations are usually made after the framework for the walls and ceiling are up.

Autumn Campers Push State Park Attendance Up

LANSING (AP) — Autumn campers and nature trail buffs will give Michigan's state parks the frosting for attendance which has passed all of 1968 with two months to go.

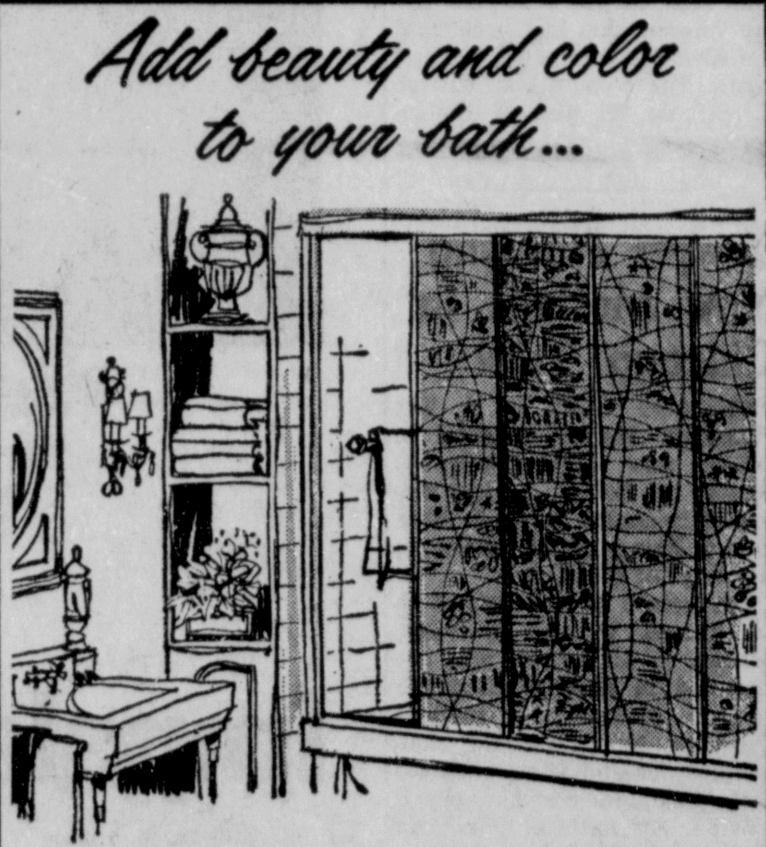

The Department of Natural Resources said 18 million day visitors and 401,000 camping families have used the 72 state parks.

Total attendance through mid-October topped last year's record by about 400,000 giving 1969 an automatic record, which stood in 1968 at 389,000 camping permits.

Officials said that the summer's generally sunny skies and high temperatures had a big bearing on bringing recreationists to state parks in record numbers.

Southern Michigan parks drew the biggest crowds, totaling 10.4 million day visitors and nearly 129,000 camping families. At the mid-October count, the figures topped 1968 by 439,000 visitors and 4,484 campers.

Suburban Home Could Solve Your Problems

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Houses are so high-priced, many young couples cannot afford ownership. Some suburban communities are finding that their high schools are jammed, but their nursery schools and kindergartens are beginning to have vacancies.

A young bride who wanted to live in the suburban town where her husband teaches school, is instead living in a city 25 miles from his job. He commutes to their "old-fashioned apartment that is pretty dreary," she says.

Will we be caught in a no-house trap for the rest of our lives? That is the question that bothers many house-oriented young people.

The obstacle to their house plans is the down payment. A large amount of cash is needed in this tight-money market, whereas in other times it was possible to raise two loans—the down payment and the mortgage money.

The only solution is to save money needed for the down payment.

Here are some ideas offered by young people who have had the problem:

Live spartan-style for a year, two or three.

If the wife works, live completely within the husband's means, and put the wife's earnings into a house fund.

Resist vacations. A ski trip or ocean voyage may look attractive, but you must keep "thinking house."

Clothes purchases must be kept to a minimum.

Entertaining should be postponed until "you've got it made."

Food budget should be used strictly for food, not for convenience items. The newlyweds have cut down on such items as ready mixes . . . disposable items . . . frozen foods.

Installment buying eats up cash. Buy only those home-furnishings that are needed. (One young couple confesses that they ran time payments to $300 a month before they stopped to think that they could have put this money toward a home.)

Explore new avenues of recreation that are low-cost or free (some adult education community programs offer dancing, yoga, languages, games.)

In establishing your savings goal, you should determine the approximate sum needed to buy a house in the area of your choice. Then determine how much mortgage money the local bank is dispensing at this time, and decide how long it will take you to save the amount needed.

Watching your nest egg grow will provide you with the fortitude to continue the project. You might begin to look at houses, fabrics, furniture. This will provide knowledge and keep you happy until you are armed with the necessary funds to make firm decisions.

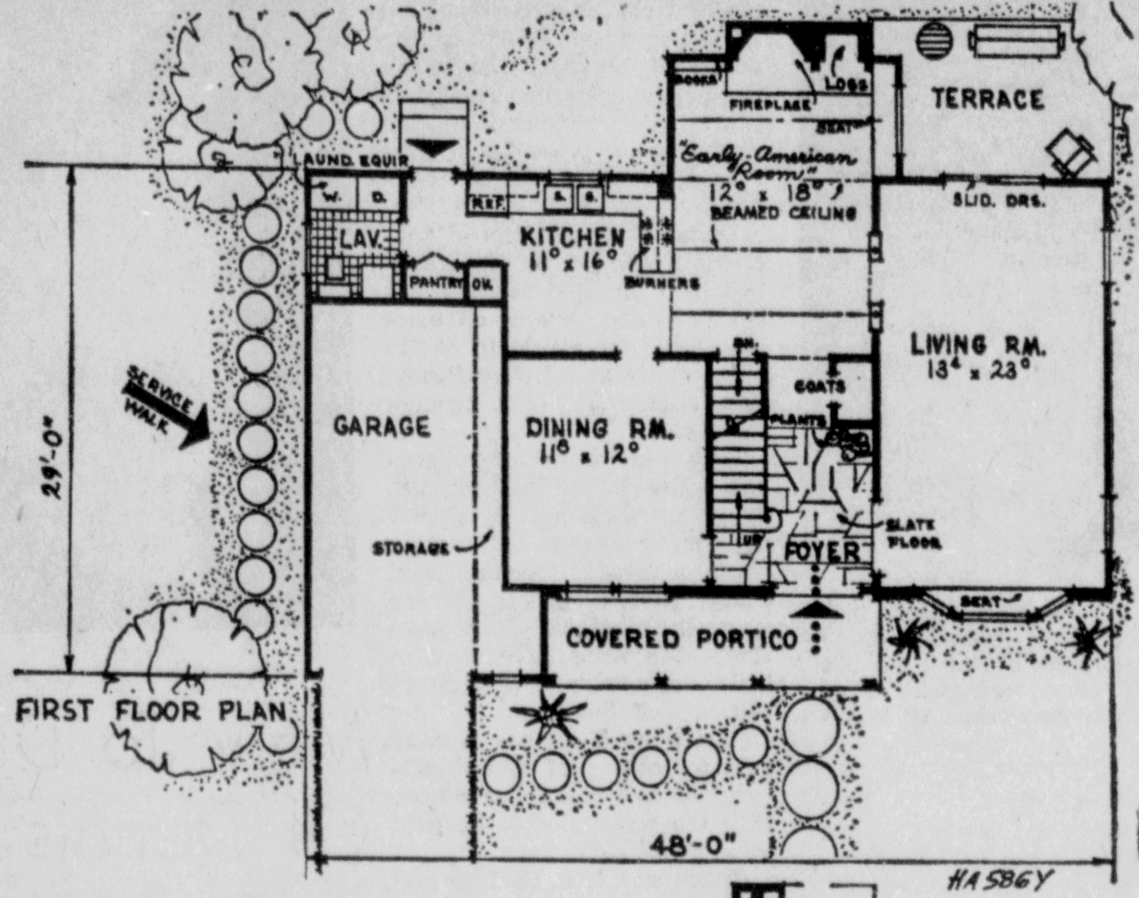

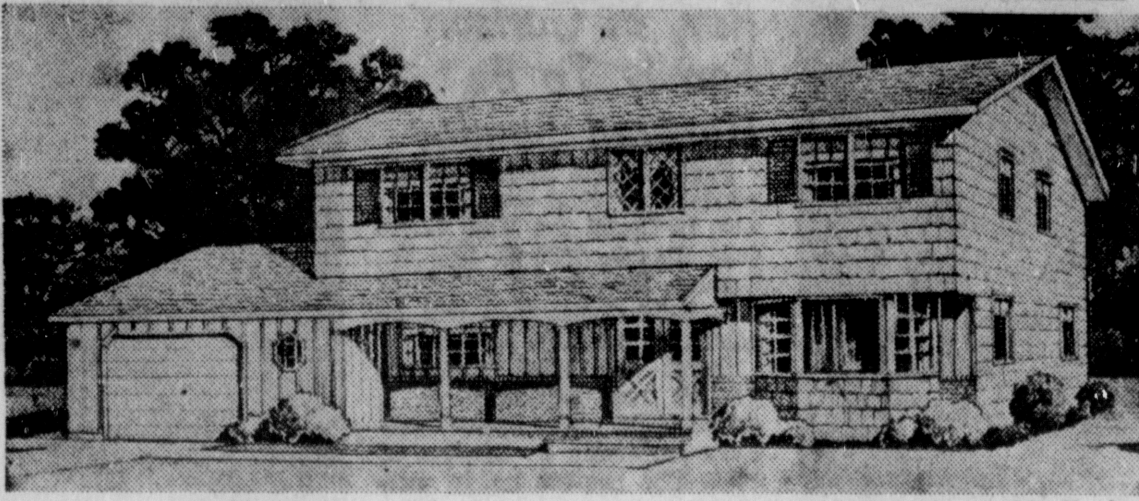

Rents are so high, if one can find a place to rent, that many young couples are astonished to find that the house mortgage payment is far below what they paid in rent. Insurance and maintenance doesn't even take the complete slide, and they get a break on their federal income tax where they can deduct mortgage interest.

It may be far better to live cramped in an apartment for a limited time until you can afford to buy a house than to rent a deluxe one at high prices. In addition to the financial burden that can keep you from saving money, the rent may escalate after you become resigned to the idea of renting.

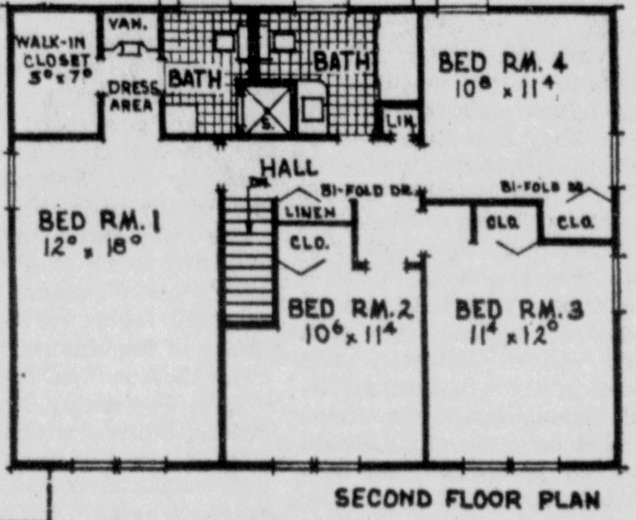

One couple offered to paint the outside of the two-story rented house they had lived in four years, if the landlord would pay for the paint. He turned them down. They would have saved him $1,000 in labor costs, but he preferred to raise their rent and pay for the paint job. They moved.

Another young couple was happy to find a four-room house to rent on their limited budget, but didn't take a good look. They got a lemon. The door doesn't shut properly, water flows from faucets in trickles, the heating plant is inadequate, the ceiling sheds plaster. Nevertheless, they feel luckier than their friends. In the low-rent house they will be able to save money towards a home of their own.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS TWO-STORY HOUSE gives best dollar value. The foyer, with slate floor and brick planter, leads into the large livingroom, which has bay window and seat. Sliding glass doors go out to the rear terrace. The "Early American Room" has beamed ceiling, fireplace, log bin and bookcase. Adjoining kitchen has a double-bowl sink. The rear entrance is between the kitchen and lavatory-laundry. A separate, almost-square dining room is provided. The second floor has four bedrooms, three of which are double exposed. Architect for HA586Y is Herman York, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432. It has 1,054 square feet on the first floor and 936 on the second.

Ag Report

LANSING (AP) — The State Agriculture Commission plans to hear reports on meetings of the governor's environmental quality council and committee on horse racing when it meets in regular session Nov. 11-12 at Lansing. Also on the agenda are reports on enforcement of the state's manufacturing milk law, the meat inspection program and other consumer protection services.

Except for the Red Sea, Utah's Salt Lake is the saltiest body of water on earth.

Mistake Costs Father His Life

ROCHESTER (AP) — A 40-year-old father of five died in a blaze at his home in Rochester Thursday when he ran back into the flames to find his son whom he mistakenly thought was still inside.

Fire chief Lyle Buchanan said Loyce Snyder died in the basement of the house, apparently a victim of smoke inhalation. Snyder had earlier led his wife and other children out of the flame-engulfed house. Buchanan said he went back inside to look for his 17-year-old son, David, who was in the home next-door reporting the fire.

Centuries ago the Spanish believed that copper grew in the ground. They thought if an exhausted copper mine was left alone, it would become productive again.

HERE'S THE ANSWER

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Q.—Our small son's bedroom is covered with vinyl, the sheet kind, not the tile. We tried to get out some crayon marks by rubbing the area with lacquer thinner, which someone had recommended. To our dismay, the thinner completely ruined the vinyl, so that, instead of a few small marks, there now is a scarred section roughly about 10 inches by 15 inches, with irregular edges. The rest of the vinyl is in good condition and we'd hate to have to replace the entire flooring. Would it be a good idea to try and match the pattern with a couple of vinyl tiles, cutting out the bad section and replacing it with the tiles?

A.—That's a possibility, but you might run into difficulty in making a perfect match. Also, you'd have to be certain that the thickness of the tiles was identical with that of the present flooring. A more certain way to make an inconspicuous patch, is to cut out the damaged section in a single piece—preferably using a blade cutter with a handle, although a sharp knife will do. Place the piece of vinyl over a part of the flooring that can't be seen, perhaps under the bed or bureau. Cut around the edges, working slowly and carefully. You then will have a replacement patch of the right size, down to the tiniest fraction of an inch. If the pattern requires an exact match, be sure you select the proper spot for cutting the duplicate piece. Before cementing the vinyl, scrape off any old adhesive. When the patch is in place, weight it down, using a stack of heavy books or something similar.

Long Distance Rates Face Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer, beset with rising costs and a shrinking dollar, is getting some welcome relief from old "Ma Bell."

As a result of negotiations with the government, American Telephone and Telegraph will cut its interstate long distance rates by a record $150 million starting next year. AT&T is parent company of the Bell Telephone system.

This reduction, coupled with another $87 million slash scheduled to go into effect Feb. 1, means a total savings in 1970 of $237 million on phone calls across state lines.

In making the rate trimming announcement Wednesday, the Federal Communications Commission said the cuts reflect an increasing AT&T profit coupled with growing long distance phone use.

AT&T said details of the cuts will be made known in the near future. But the $150 million reduction could mean about a 3 per cent drop in the average phone bill for interstate calls.

The FCC said the $150 million reduction follows from a recently completed review of the phone company's financial status, made by the commission, Bell officials and outside experts.

The $87 million savings offsets an identical increase in rates granted AT&T for users of such large commercial facilities as Telpak and Teletypewriter exchange-TWX.

Although it will cost less for a Maryland resident to call his mother in San Diego, there is no reduction in sight for calls across town. Local and state costs are governed by state agencies, not the FCC, which has jurisdiction over interstate phone rates.

The phone company didn't seem to take the FCC findings too hard. AT&T Vice Chairman John D. DeButts said while the rate cut "is somewhat larger than we believe appropriate at this time, it will not by itself reduce our interstate rate of return below 8 per cent."

The last interstate long distance rate cut was ordered by the FCC in 1967 when the costs were cut a total of $120 million. AT&T said this will be the eighth such drop in the last 10 years.

Early long distance roads in Europe were laid out and used by traders gathering amber.

School Official Wants Salary Negotitation Law

LANSING (AP) — A Lansing school board official told a House committee Thursday teachers and local school boards should be required by law to start salary negotiations by March 15 and finish them in open, public sessions if contracts aren't signed by June 15.

Thomas C. Walsh, Lansing school board treasurer, made the suggestion when he met with the House Education Committee to review Gov. William G. Milliken's education reform legislation.

Today's Plan Hit
"Teacher negotiations today are obviously not true collective bargaining as we think of it in the private sector," said Walsh, contending his timetable would remove teacher contract talks "from a vale of secrecy."

The House planned a skeleton session for 10 a.m. today, as leaders on either side of the aisle agreed not to demand a quorum. Only a constitutional prohibition against recessing for more than two days at a time prevented cancellation of any meeting today.

But since no sessions are planned until Wednesday, legislators in the lower chamber will have a four-day weekend stretching from Saturday through Veterans' Day on Tuesday.

Boards In Jeopardy?
Walsh's suggestion came as House Democrats released a study arguing Milliken's program would seriously weaken the bargaining positions of local boards and force them to hire fewer teachers in order to save money needed to meet inflated salary demands.

"The governor seems to attempt to stand on both sides of the fence with regard to teacher negotiations," the analysis concluded. It was prepared largely by Robert D. Crim, executive secretary to House Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit.

Milliken proposed a new budgeting process that would require local districts to submit spending estimates early in the year. Successive review would be made by superintending regions, the State Education Department, the governor and, finally, the Legislature which would vote funds.

Early Budget Requests
Districts now must make their budget requests almost a year ahead, but often cannot count on receiving the first checks until after the start of September school years. One advantage, though, is that they rightfully can plead inability to pay the salary scales that teacher unions demand.

Under Milliken's proposed budgeting process, Democrats contend, that would change.

"With the state basing its aid to school districts upon predetermined and publicly displayed standards for teacher salaries, the power of local units to bargain with teachers will be substantially weakened," the study found.

A district authorized 100 teachers under Milliken's proposed ratio of one for each 25 students might decide to hire only 90.

Demos Against Move
Democrats say that would be inconsistent with Milliken's call for lower ratios to increase teaching quality.

They also don't like the formula Milliken recommended for allocating some $1.035 billion in his proposed school aid budget for next year. Most of the increase goes to school districts with average state equalized property values to $10,000 to $20,000.

Districts at the bottom of the scale, with average valuation of only $3,000, would receive a mere $3.50 increase for each child. The average for the $3,000-district, however, would be $493, considerably more than the $138 per child paid to $30,000-districts at the top of the scale.

Critics In Action
Criticizing other aspects of Milliken's plan the report said: —The governor failed to propose qualifications for the education department director he would appoint if abolition of the State Board of Education is approved.

"Significant education issues would inevitably be lost in the political rhetoric of a gubernatorial campaign," the study said.

—Some 10-15 proposed regional districts are among "the more substantive" of the governor's education proposals but are "doomed to die the death of creeping bureaucracy" because of a failure to assure local access.

—Vague criteria for reorganization of local and intermediate districts "give local districts a strong base from which to negotiate in the hope of escaping reorganization."

—The only fair tax is a graduated income tax that would eliminate property taxes and obviate the need for an increased cigarette tax or cancellation of the property tax and rent credit on state income taxes.

No Intent To End Commercial Catch

U.P. Biologist Defends DNR Zone Plans For Great Lakes

The regional fish biologist for the Department of Natural Resources in the Upper Peninsula today defended the department's zone management plan for the Great Lakes, asserting that it is not the intent of the DNR to eliminate all commercial fishing in Michigan waters of the Great Lakes.

Henry Vondett of Marquette made the statement in response to articles written by Daily Press managing editor Clint Dunathan and to editorial criticism of the zone management plan by the Press.

The Press expressed concern for the availability of fresh fish from Michigan waters for the consuming public if commercial fishing is "phased out" under the management plan, which establishes new regulations on commercial fishing and further limits areas in which fish can be commercially netted through new sports, rehabilitation and commercial fishing zones.

Plan Opposed
Commercial fishermen have opposed the plan, insisting that if the plan is implemented as scheduled Jan. 1 that within several years there won't be a commercial fisherman left in Michigan.

Vondett's statement: "The Zone Management Plan for Great Lakes fishery has taken over a year to formulate and has been worked on by all biologists of the Fish Division as well as other personnel from the Department of Natural Resources. The Plan is designed to protect endangered species and to promote the rebuilding of fish stocks for both sport and commercial interests."

"Designated areas were set up with full recognition of fishermen interests, past and present, and fish producing areas for those species which are considered to be in sufficient quantity that some commercial harvest can be allowed. The plan is designed to maximize both sport and commercial fishing with regard to the biological resources, and has as its objective the promotion of a healthy recreational fishery and commercial fishery for those stocks of fish that are capable of being harvested yet maintain their own population."

Seek Fishery Control
"It is not the intent of this Department to eliminate the commercial fishery. We do, however, wish to control the fishery to prevent further over-exploitation of fish stocks; and desire to place the fishery in its proper perspective in relation to the State of Michigan."

"Sport fishing zones were selected because of their suitability for the sport fishery for the indigenous species in the respective areas, and because of the intensive management that can be given to these areas. Rehabilitation zones were selected as areas where fish stocks could be rehabilitated and are zones that are suitable for this purpose."

"Commercial fishing zones were selected because these are the areas where the bulk of the commercial fishing has been done for such species as herring and whitefish, which are the prime commercial species."

Recognize Importance
"It is fully recognized that fish are an important item in the diet of people. The commercial harvest of fish from the Great Lakes in 1968 was about 22 million pounds valued at about $2.5 million."

"The Zone Management Plan is expected to reduce this harvest to about 17 million pounds, worth approximately $2 million. The sport fishery is estimated to yield in excess of 10 million pounds of fish."

"In 1968, of the 22 million pounds marketed, 54 per cent of the 13 million pounds of principle food fishes were sold in out-state markets. Only three million pounds were marketed in the State of Michigan."

"It is obvious that the bulk of fresh fish consumed in the diet of Michigan residents comes from the sport-caught fish, and it seems unfounded to consider that any curtailment of the commercial fishing industry, as described in the Management Plan, would prevent the people of the State of Michigan from having a source of fresh fish to eat. In the Escanaba area alone, in the past two weeks, the catch of coho salmon alone has amounted to an excess of 32,000 pounds."

"We realize that there are important species of fish to be harvested from the Great Lakes and that commercial interests are best suited to this. However, it is essential that control be placed upon the fishery to assure the continuation of the stocks and the healthiness of the species."

"We feel that a harvest of whitefish, herring, and chubs can be allowed, but without proper management populations will continue to decline as they have over the past years. Even now some populations are showing serious signs of being further reduced unless checks are placed on the harvest rate."

Hope Perch Return
"It is hoped that with the removal of commercial harvest on the yellow perch that this species will rebuild. It is at a seriously low level now, and with or without controls, the situation is impossible since the perch are not there in sufficient numbers to be caught."

"Surely we do not want to wipe this species out completely by further exploitation. It is our hope that by removing commercial fishing pressure on this species, the population will rebound and we can look forward to adding it back to the commercial list in the future."

Some fish species are, for all practical purposes, extinct in the Great Lakes waters. Other populations are in serious trouble and, in fact, depleted to the point of no return. Continued overexploitation will seriously jeopardize the future of many of the species in the Great Lakes."

Plan Reviewed
The Zone Management Plan has been reviewed with some of the agencies and has, in general, received the endorsement of Wisconsin. Programs of the other states and Ontario are with our full knowledge, and are reviewed at least once annually through the Great Lakes Fishery Commission. All states and Canada cooperate in the rehabilitation of the Great Lakes and openly and fairly discuss management programs. The biological approach to management of the Great Lakes fishery has always been conducted in a most cooperative manner."

"It should be emphasized that the most important aspect of our Management Plan is not the protection of the coho salmon, but rather the protection of the lake trout — a species that all states and the Province of Ontario are trying to rebuild in the Great Lakes."

"It must be stated emphati-

New Commercial Fishing Controls To Be Adopted

LANSING (AP)—Tighter restrictions on commercial fishermen were scheduled to be approved today by the State Department of Natural Resources.

Commission Chairman August (Gus) Scholle tipped off the commission action when he rejected a last minute plea Thursday by Rep. Russell Hellman, D-Dollar Bay.

"Protect the vanishing American—the commercial fishermen of Michigan—these more stringent regulations will strangle them to death," Hellman said. Since 1950, Hellman said, the number of commercial fishermen in Michigan has declined from 1,460 to about 350.

Save The Resource?
"This is our best argument to save the natural resource of our fish for the commercial fishermen and everyone else," Scholle countered.

"Look at the disastrous results from no action. Are we going to wait until there are only 50 commercial fishermen left? We should be courageous enough to approve these regulations on behalf of the commercial fishermen and everyone else."

Rep. Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, agreed with the commission stand. "Fish are a public trust the same as our woods, our oil or timber," he observed. "They should be treated the same way."

Restriction Backed
Rep. Joseph Snyder, R-St. Claire Shores, expressed approval of the commission proposal to protect walleyes in Lake Erie by banning commercial netting during the months of April and October.

Also supporting this restriction was Rep. John Kelsey, D-Warren.

Claude Ve Duin of Grand Haven, representing the Midwest Federated Fisheries Council, said he felt it was impossible to prevent the restrictions.

He asked, however, for a continuing series of meetings with commercial fishermen to make possible changes in the regulations.

The regulations would generally restrict licenses to active commercial fishermen. Their range would be limited and the species taken would be strictly controlled.

Planning 'Save Lake Michigan' Meet Next Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-state agreement to host a "Save Lake Michigan" session in Chicago Dec. 17 was announced Thursday by Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Interior Department and Govs. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois, Edgar D. Whitcomb of Indiana, William G. Milliken of Michigan and Warren P. Knowles of Wisconsin.

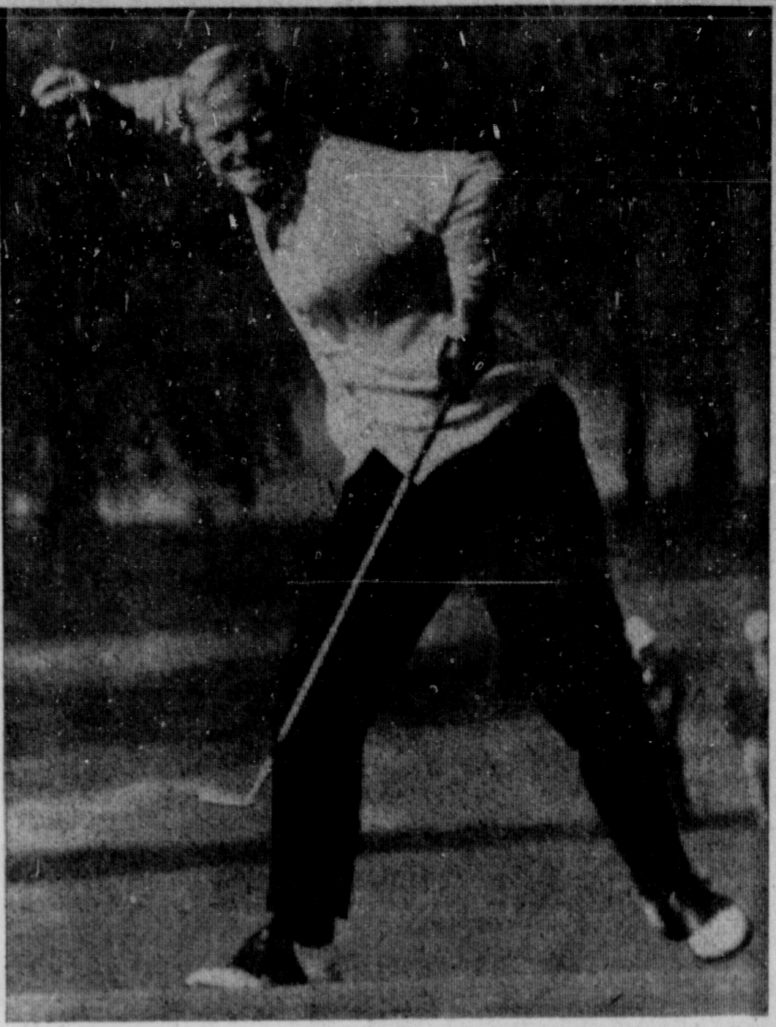

In telegrams sent to the four governors, Hickel said: "I know that each of you shares my sentiment that Lake Michigan is in grave danger and steps must be accelerated to eliminate its pollution."

Hickel said he is further convinced that efforts must be advanced to the point of such urgency that steps be taken to eliminate current pollution and at the same time develop a policy which allows restoration of the lake to such a degree of purity that its marine resources will again thrive in an abundance not known for decades.

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken has proclaimed Nov. 9 as recognition day in Michigan in honor of the American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

The governor also proclaimed Nov. 21 as Mayflower Compact Day to mark the anniversary of the compact signed by the Pilgrim pioneers who sailed from England and Holland to Cape Cod.

Nicklaus After Third Straight

HONOLULU (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, threatening to make the fall tour his personal showcase, carried a whopping four-stroke lead into the second round of the $125,000 Hawaiian Open Golf tournament today.

Big Jack, who has won both of the fall tournaments he has entered, established a course record with a blistering 63 on the 7,020-yard, par 72 Waialae Country Club layout Thursday.

It was accomplished in the face of blustery trade winds that reached gusts of more than 40 miles an hour and sent most of the rest of first round scores soaring.

His leading margin was the biggest of the season after 18 holes and had his fellow pro talking to themselves.

"If he keeps on putting like that, you just can't beat him," said Billy Casper, one of the pre-tourney favorites who had an opening 73, 10 shots back.

Ken Still and Dave Stockton were tied for second with 67s, while Jack McGowan and John Schroeder had 68s. The group at 69 included Bill Johnson, Grier Jones, Randy Wolff and Larry Ziegler.

Arnold Palmer was in a large group at 70. Leading money winner Frank Beard and masters' champion George Archer each had a 71. Lee Trevino and U.S. Open champion Orville Moody posted 74s and PGA titleholder Ray Floyd had a 75.

Colts Favored To Upend Packers By Three Points

NEW YORK (AP) — The roof really caved in last Sunday, trapping the Dallas Cowboys, St. Louis Cardinals, Oakland Raiders and the old Hand picker in the wreckage.

After a 6-7 week it takes a lot of heart to try again, even if a 64-24-3 season record does help. But the season is only half over and, at least, the Los Angeles Rams haven't let us down yet.

Let's try again with all games scheduled for Sunday in both the National Football League and the American Football League.

NFL

Minnesota 27, Cleveland 17 — When Carl Eller, Alan Page and Co. run up against Dick Schafrath and Friends, somebody is going to get hurt. If Bill Nelsen gets through another week without getting his shirt dirty he should go into the Hall of Fame. Joe Kapp and Fred Cox team up while defense holds the fort.

Los Angeles 31, San Francisco 21 — The 49ers almost made George Allen turn grey in first game when Rams had to come from way back to win. Roman Gabriel on the beam while John Brodie has been having arm trouble but is due back. Always a war.

New York 24, St. Louis 20 — A hunch upset on the grounds that Fran Tarkenton is overdue to start hitting and the Saints did score 51 points on the Cardinal defense last week. But Giant offensive line must keep Cards off Francis' neck.

Baltimore 24, Green Bay 21 — If Terry Hanratty can score 34 points on Packers, why not John Unitas? Revamped Colt defense did a job on Washington but gets big test in Packers' revived attack.

Dallas 31, New Orleans 17 — This was to have been the year for the Cowboys at long last but something went wrong at Cleveland. They can't take Saints lightly after last week's 51-point spree and close 21-17 early game won by Cowboys in last quarter on a big day by Calvin Hill.

Chicago 14, Pittsburgh 10 — Bears are favored but why with 0-7 record? Wrigley Field natives getting unruly and that Bear defense can make life miserable for Hanratty. Gale Sayers building up steam for a big blowoff.

Washington 24, Philadelphia 17 — Eagle defense full of holes and Sonny Jurgensen will take full advantage of it.

Detroit 20, Atlanta 14 — In-and-out Lions never have lost to Falcons and Tiger Stadium is no place to break the habit. Lions a shade better on offense and tougher on defense with strong pass rush.

AFL

Oakland 30 Denver 14 — It must have been a tough week for Raiders after that humiliation in Cincinnati. Al Davis will cut off the meal money if

Hawks Record Victory Chicago Files Protest

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Hawks nipped the Bulls 124-122 in a National Basketball Association game in Chicago Thursday night but most of the action came after the game.

A wild flurry of arguments erupted on whether the game-ending buzzer had sounded and Pat Williams, general manager of the Bulls, said he will file an official protest with NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

In the only other NBA game, San Francisco crushed Cincinnati 130-109.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh beat Miami 133-127 and Kentucky overpowered Denver 145-119.

Lou Hudson of Atlanta tied the score 122-all in the last 15 seconds and then hit two free throws on a foul called against Chet Walker to make the score 124-122.

With five seconds left, Chicago took the ball out of bounds and Clem Haskins fired a shot at the basket. Tom Boerwinkle leaped into the air and tapped the ball through the hoop with the clock showing one second to play.

Referee Bob Rakek ruled the basket didn't count because of the league rule stating no player other than the shooter can touch the ball if the final buzzer has sounded when the shot was made.

Rakek said he heard the final buzzer when Haskins let go. Jack Madden, the other official, said he didn't. Timekeeper James Seery said he told the referees the buzzer had not sounded and there was one second remaining and added he would repeat his contention to Kennedy if he's asked.

Hudson flicked in 21 points, 12 of them in the final quarter to help the Hawks, the Western Division leaders, overcome a 17-point deficit. Bill Bridges, however, was the Hawks' high scorer with 22. Walker topped the Bulls with 27.

Jeff Mullins reeled off six straight field goals in the third quarter to help San Francisco dump Cincinnati. Mullins scored a game-high 26 points and Nate Thurmond followed with 25.

St. Louis Snaps Red Wing Streak

By The Associated Press

St. Louis' newfound power play continues to have its National Hockey League foes singing the blues.

The West Division leaders, next-to-last in the league last season in power play goals, scored three times while Detroit was short-handed Thursday night in snapping the Red Wings' four-game victory streak 5-2.

That gave the Blues 16 power play goals in just 12 games—best in the league.

Montreal sidetracked the Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 in the night's only other NHL match.

Veteran Red Berenson scored his sixth and seventh goals of the campaign—including one on a power play, while Phil Goyette scored the game's first goal on a power play and assisted on Berenson's first marker that snapped a 1-1 tie and put St. Louis ahead for good.

Larry Keenan's backhander on another power play made it 4-1 in the second period before Garry Unger scored for the Red Wings.

Ab McDonald finished up the Blues' scoring with his seventh of the season in the second session. Wayne Connelly provided Detroit's first goal.

Montreal's victory, combined with Detroit's loss, vaulted the Canadiens into a first-place tie in the East with the Red Wings and idle Boston.

Three Michigan Players Still Playing With Pros

The pickings from Michigan may have been slim in last January's professional football draft of college players.

But the state can boast that half of its players chosen made the grade in the tough National Football League, including one who is already making headlines.

Of the six Michigan players drafted, three made it: running back Ron Johnson of the University of Michigan, the No. 1 choice of the Cleveland Browns; linebacker Tom Stincic of Michigan, the Dallas Cowboys' third choice; and defensive back Al Brenner of Michigan State, the fourth selection of the New York Giants.

The three who didn't stick were: defensive back George Hoye of Michigan, the ninth player chosen by the Detroit Lions; tackle Gerald Lutri of Northern Michigan, Dallas' 14th selection; and running back Karl Wilson of Olivet, the 14th choice of the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Johnson didn't waste any time impressing the fans in Cleveland, despite a brief holdout which lasted until a couple weeks before the regular season started. He signed a two-year contract and immediately became a first string halfback.

Currently the former U-M captain, who holds most of the Wolverines' rushing records, is the eighth leading rusher in the NFL. He has carried the ball 92 times for 348 yards and five touchdowns.

"He's a better back than many of the pros thought," said Browns coach Blanton Collier before the season began. "He impresses me with his attitude, intelligence and quickness."

The 6-foot, 205-pound Johnson has good speed, is a good blocker, and has a fine sense of finding holes.

Commenting on his late start due to the holdout, Johnson said: "My aim is to be a regular. For the first couple of weeks I knew where to go but that was about all..."

Stincic was an All-Big Ten teammate of Johnson. He made it with Dallas as a reserve outside linebacker.

Former All-Pro Jerry Tubbs, now a coach with the Cowboys, labels Stincic as "a bright prospect with real good potential."

Brenner gives former Detroit Lion star Bruce Maher a breather as a defensive backfield replacement for New York.

Brenner, who was an All-America at Michigan State, played both defensive back and flanker with the Spartans. His career receiving record shows 73 catches for 1,232 yards.

"I remember scouting him in college," said Giants backfield coach Emlen Tunnell. "And I knew then that he had great hands. He's a top punt return man, too."

"Brenner has the confidence of a boy who has always come out on top," Tunnell added. "He knows he can do it if he gets the chance. Some rookies don't have this kind of positive attitude. And he works, boy, how he works."

The pre-law student, who also received a baseball offer from the Chicago Cubs, was a brilliant student and had thought about going full time to law school.

"How could I throw away the chance to play professional football?" Brenner asked. "I figured I had to give it a shot."

Another prospect, Jerald Collins of Western Michigan University, is a linebacker with the Buffalo Bills. He signed as a free agent.

Two other players from the state tried out with pro teams but didn't make the grade. Included were defensive end Tom Goss and defensive tackle Jerry Miklos of U-M who tried out with the Minnesota Vikings.

Coaches Meeting

Veteran Cogdill Makes Homecoming At Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — There aren't many familiar names or faces in the Atlanta Falcons regular lineup, which contains seven rookies.

But there is one "oldtimer" who Detroiters will quickly spot Sunday when the Lions tangle with the Falcons in their National Football League game.

Gail Cogdill, 10-year NFL veteran and former Rookie of the Year as a Lion, is now with Atlanta. He spent nine seasons with the Lions and holds the team's reception record of 525 catches.

"It's going to be a lot of fun to come back and play against guys I know," Cogdill said. "The guys in Atlanta are teasing me about going back to Detroit."

It was a year ago this week that the 32-year-old split end was traded by Detroit to the Baltimore Colts. The Colts put him on waivers before the regular season started and the Falcons picked him up by trading a sixth-round draft choice.

Cogdill appeared to be washed up in the NFL when Detroit traded him. He hadn't been playing much his last few years with the Lions and until this season he hadn't caught two

Sooners' Owens Key To Big Eight Crown

By The Associated Press
"I've never seen anyone like him. He's the best I've seen."

The speaker was Missouri Coach Dan Devine and the subject was Steve Owens, Oklahoma's slashing tailback.

And, there's a reason why the coach of the No. 9-ranked Tigers was cringing a little when he spoke of the Sooners' 6-foot-2, 215-pound one-man battering ram.

Missouri has to stop Owens—something that no other team has managed this year—and the No. 20 Sooners at Columbia Saturday to remain in serious contention for the Big Eight championship and a trip to the Orange Bowl.

The Tigers are tied with surprising Kansas State and Nebraska, all with 3-1 marks, for first place while Oklahoma is only a half-game off the pace at 2-1.

Devine Wishing
"I would hope we could stop Owens," said Devine. "Kansas State did a few times. We'll go with what we have and just hope we can stop him."

But the odds are against it. Owens, who ripped Missouri for 176 yards in a 28-14 victory last year, warmed up for this week's game by carrying the ball 53 times, one shy of the major college record, for a league record 248 yards and four touchdowns in a 37-14 coast past Iowa State last week.

He already has gained 881 yards and scored 17 touchdowns in six games, and he needs just 164 yards to break the college career mark of 3,388 set in 1968 by West Texas State's Mercury Morris.

And, the Tigers aren't blessed with an abundance of talent to stop him. Missouri's defense was far from adequate in a 41-38 squeaker over K-State last week, yielding a whopping 394 yards to passer Lynn Dickey.

Fine Runner
Missouri, however, has a fine runner of its own—Joe Moore, who ranks third nationally with 184 rushes for 904 yards in seven games—and a dandy quarterback in Terry McMillan.

Kansas State and Nebraska, tied with Oklahoma as the No. 20 team, meanwhile, shouldn't have any trouble holding on to their share of first. The Wildcats, 5-2 over-all, travel to Oklahoma State, 1-2 and 3-3, while Nebraska, 5-2 over-all, plays host to Iowa State, 1-3 and 3-4.

In other games, it's Baylor at No. 2 Texas, South Carolina at No. 3 Tennessee, No. 4 Arkansas at Rice, Washington State at No. 6 Southern California, and No. 8 Notre Dame at Pittsburgh.

Play Tonight
Games matching teams in the second 10 are Michigan State at No. 10 Purdue, Mississippi State at No. 11 Auburn, Alabama at No. 12 Louisiana State at night, No. 16 Georgia vs. No. 13 Florida at Jacksonville, Fla., No. 14 Stanford at Washington, U-T-Chattanooga at No. 17 Mississippi, No. 18 Michigan at Illinois and Utah State at No. 19 Air Force.

Navy, 1-6 and still reeling from last week's 47-0 trouncing by Notre Dame, travels to Miami, Fla., in tonight's only major college action.

Texas and Arkansas, each 6-0, face little threat to their co-leadership in the Southwest Conference. The Razorbacks, who have rolled up 226 points while yielding only 40, face a team that has managed only one victory in six games, while Texas' crunching running backs should pulverize winless Baylor.

Southern California, unbeaten in six games and leading the Pacific-8 with a 3-0 mark, is an overwhelming favorite against Washington State, 1-6, as is Notre Dame, 5-1-1, against Pittsburgh, 3-4.

Ohio State is expected to breeze past Wisconsin—a team that hasn't beaten the Buckeyes since 1918—in ringing up its 21st straight victory and holding on to the Big 10 lead.

But, the three teams tied for the runner-up spot with 3-1 marks—Indiana, Michigan and Purdue—all face potential toughies in their bids for the Rose Bowl trip.

Purdue and sensational Mike Phipps can handle the Spartans, but they could be in trouble if they're looking ahead to next week's big battle with Ohio State.

Michigan is rated a three-touchdown favorite over Illinois, loser of all seven starts, but the long rivalry has been spiced with several big upsets. Indiana also shouldn't have much trouble with Iowa, 1-3, but the Hawkeyes have been a stumbling block for the Hoosiers in the past.

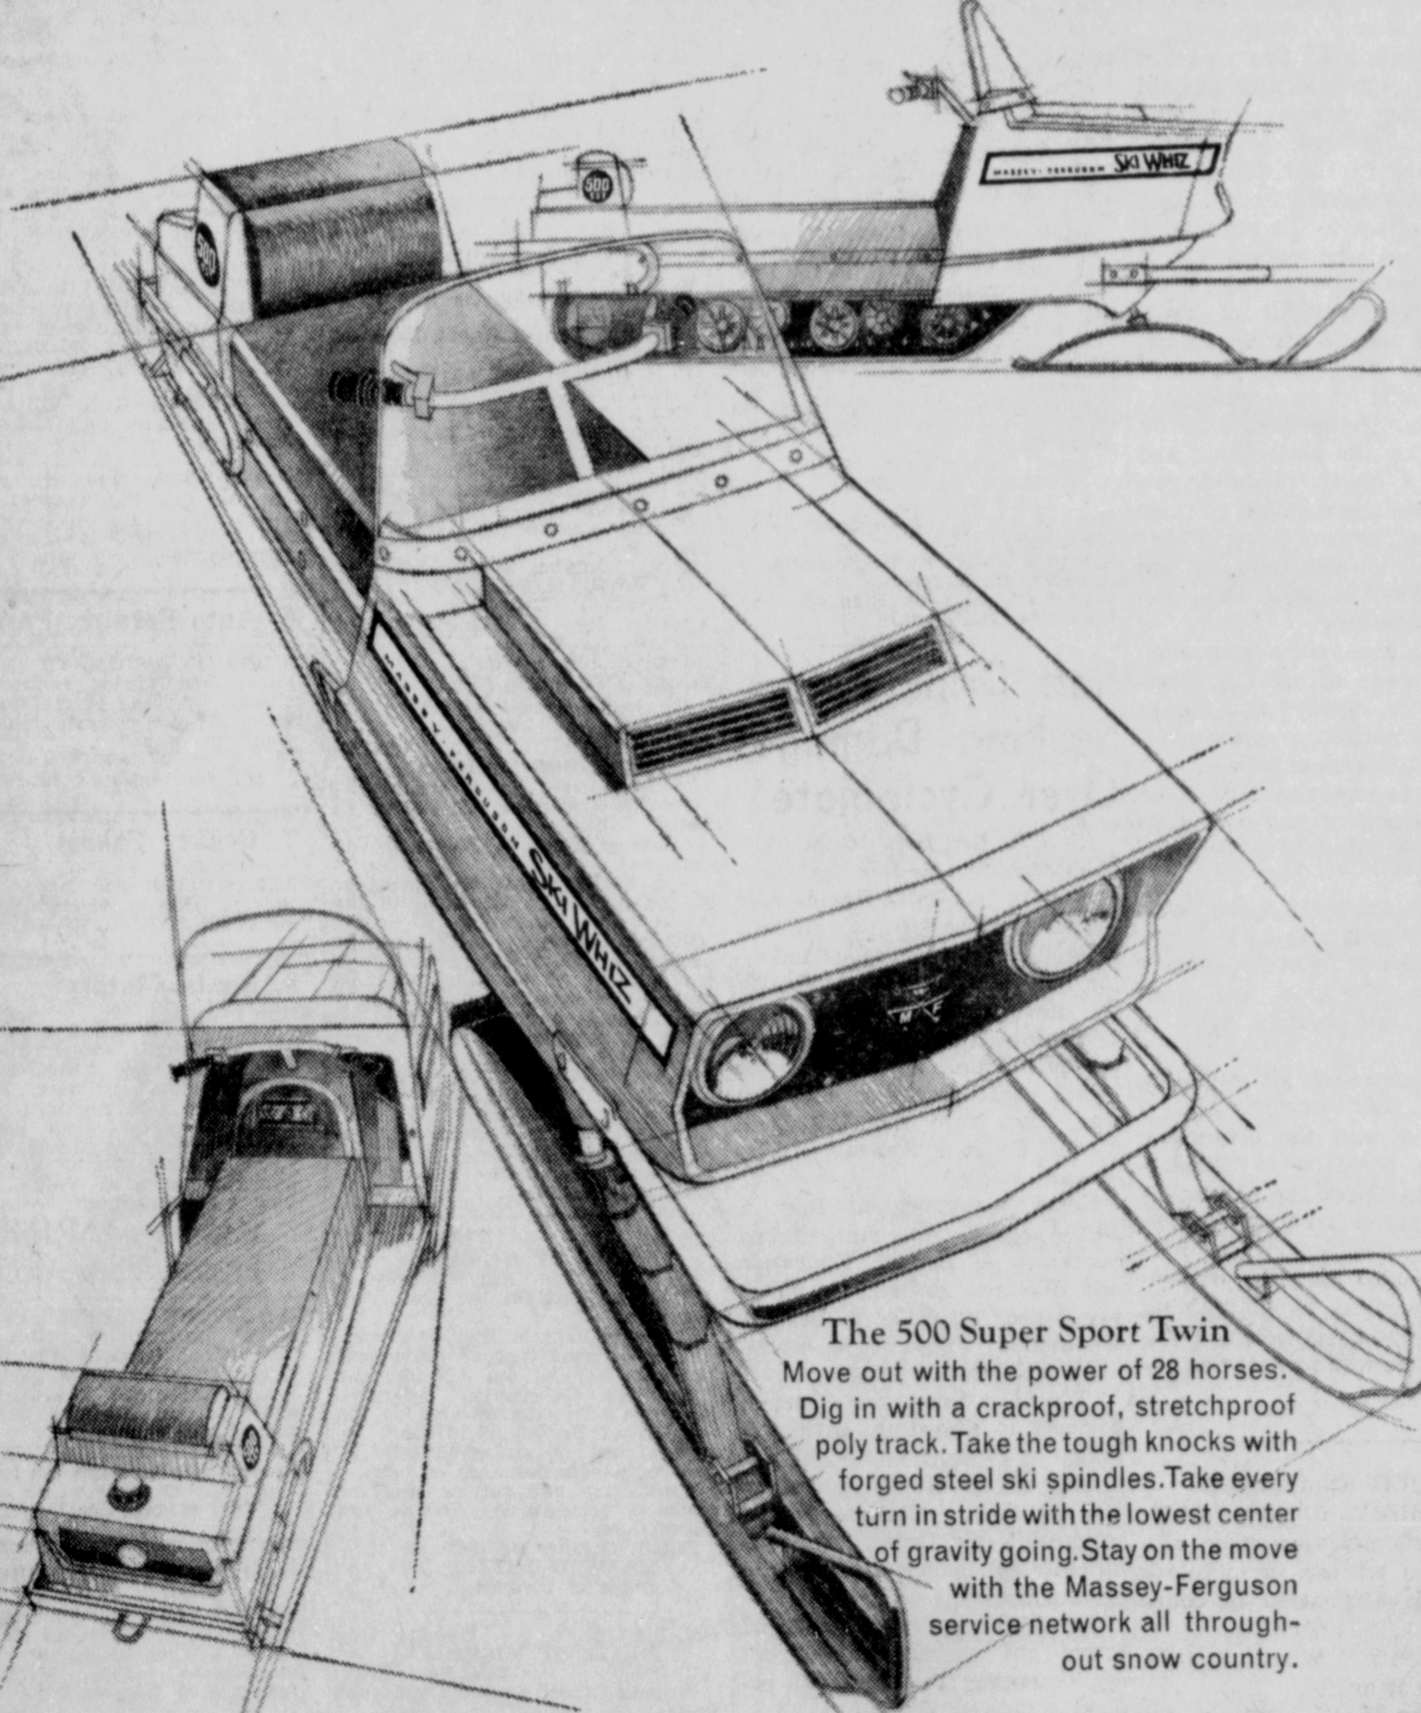

Since Tennessee, 3-0, is idle the big activity in the Southeastern Conference will be the fight for the second place spot. Florida, 2-1, knocked from the unbeaten ranks last week by Auburn, will try to get back on the right track against a Georgia team that humiliated the Gators 51-0 last season.

Cigarette Ad Bill Smolders In U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill knocking cigarette advertising off the air by Jan. 1, 1971, has gone to the Senate floor, but it may smolder there while other business takes precedence.

Tax reform, a dozen vital appropriations bills and the controversial Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. have first claim on floor action.

And senators who support even tougher restrictions on cigarette advertising may find a delay on the bill will work to their advantage in the long run.

If the legislation languishes too long, the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Communications Commission have promised to take action on their own to ban such advertising from the printed page as well as from radio and television broadcasts.

The measure banning broadcast cigarette ads by 1971 was approved by the Senate Commerce Committee Wednesday. It takes a tougher approach than does a similar measure passed by the House last summer.

The House bill would toughen the warning required on cigarette packages while prohibiting any further attempt at regulation until 1975.

The tobacco industry won two concessions from the committee, both on 10-9 votes:

—An 18-month restriction on FTC regulation, aimed specifically at barring the agency from trying to have health warnings included in all print ads.

—Inclusion of the word "excessive" in the toughened health warnings. The House bill would require cigarette packages, which now say only that smoking may be hazardous to health, to say that it may "cause lung cancer and other diseases." The Senate committee version would say such diseases can be caused by "excessive cigarette smoking."

Veterans' Day Memos Issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration has sent 100,000 educators and community leaders a detailed scenario, with appropriate pauses for band music, for Nov. 11 observances designed in part to counter antiwar protests planned two days later.

The Veterans Day packet signed by Administrator Donald E. Johnson includes complete speeches, program formats, statements for the newspapers and radio announcements.

"In contrast to the millions of our citizens who participate in these ceremonies on Nov. 11, a comparative handful of dissidents are able to attract the attention of the whole world," Johnson said in an accompanying letter, "giving those we seek to honor on the battlefields and at home a totally distorted picture of our appreciation of their sacrifices."

Johnson is chairman of the President's Veterans Day National Committee.

Johnson also sent a memorandum to heads of all VA hospitals, offices, centers and homes urging employees to attend Veterans Day ceremonies and asking them to report by Nov. 30 on "participation of you and your station employees in Veterans Day 1969."

The kit provides speech outlines; one proposed for delivery in the schools Nov. 11, with a tribute to "the valor and sacrifices of our heroic men in arms."

The organizers' kit mentions Vietnam only briefly, and a spokesman said the committee began its work on the observance plans before the November antiwar protests became an issue.

But he also said the observances appeared to be gaining support among Americans opposed to the war protest demonstrations.

WOULD REMEMBER
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A defendant was cross-examining a witness on a question of identification in court here:

Defendant: "What clothes was I wearing?"

Witness: "Black shirt, green coat and hat."

Defendant: "What color trousers?"

Witness: "I can't remember."

Defendant: "Does that mean I wasn't wearing any trousers?"

Judge: "No. He said he can't remember what color trousers you were wearing. If you were not wearing any trousers it is probable he would have remembered that fact."

Soft Drink Firm Seeking Damages Over Cyclamate

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — An attorney for the Nehi Beverage Co. in Grand Rapids said Thursday the firm's officials hope to collect damages following initiation of a suit to stop the government from banning cyclamate from diet beverages.

Grant Gruel, an attorney for Nehi, said Thursday the suit was filed with the U.S. 16th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Nehi vice president Dan J. Duffy signed the suit against Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch who issued an order in October demanding removal of cyclamate from the beverages.

"We have asked the Court of Appeals to afford us an opportunity to present additional testimony to the secretary demonstrating that cyclamate is not harmful," said Duffy, "and specifically not cancer-producing in human beings."

"We also have asked the court to restrain the secretary from implementing the removal order."

Nehi officials say they face a $250,000 loss if they comply with the federal order.

In Memoriam

Orzel, West and Manske

In loving memory of our beloved sons, Robert Orzel, Robert West and Dale Manske, who were suddenly killed six years ago, November 7, 1963.

Memories are treasures, No one can steal. Death is a heartache, Nothing can heal. Some may forget you, Now that you're gone, But we shall remember No matter how long. The call was short, The shock severe. To part with ones, We loved so dear.

Sadly Missed By Their Parents and Families
Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Orzel, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar West, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Manske

Balthazore

In loving memory of our beloved husband and father, John L. Balthazore, who passed away one year ago today, November 7, 1968.

He little thought when leaving home, He would return no more. That he in death so soon would sleep, And leave us here to mourn. We do not know what pain he bore. We did not see him die. We only know he passed away, And could not say goodbye.

Sadly Missed By His Wife and Children

NBC Special Could Surpass All Others

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some television specials are drowned in production: huge sets, dozens of dancing girls and boys, a parade of stars. That won't be the case with "An Evening with Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte."

The NBC special on Sunday night—pre-empting "Bonanza"—will feature only Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte, with an assist from Frenchman Michel Legrand. That's all. No Busby Berkeley dance numbers. No locations in the Grand Canyon. Just three talented people doing their respective things.

That is the concept of Gower Champion, who produced, directed and choreographed the special, and Miss Andrews went along with it. She also submitted to Champion's taskmaster-ship, which is legendary in show

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

SCHOOL'S OUT—Mrs. Owen Temple sits with her husband and daughters Cindy, 15, and (right) Debbie, 17, at home in Fontana, Calif., after withdrawing the daughters from Fontana High School rather than expose them to a combination of "pills, violence, sex problems, race riots and non-education . . ." She said she would educate them at home rather than "fear for their safety and welfare."

Musical Comedies Find 'Staying Alive' Tougher Than Ever

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — Musical comedies, unlike wine, do not improve with age. The book of a 1933 Broadway hit, "Roberta," had the look of a period piece when presented in a 90-minute adaptation Thursday night on NBC as a Bob Hope special.

The program was made by putting cameras on a stage play with a theater audience, a procedure which does not help the TV viewer.

What stood up beautifully were those lovely Jerome Kern-Otto Harbach songs. With Michele Lee and John Davidson singing numbers like "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "The Touch of Your Hand," there were some fine moments. And there was also a great fashion show somehow connected with the story of an American boy inheriting a Paris dress designer's salon and a house and having a stormy romance with his new partner, Miss Lee.

Hope played the part that made him a star—a wise-cracking band leader.

All sorts of updating was undertaken. Hope's lines included jokes about Jackie Onassis, Tiny Tim and marijuana. The variety hours starring Johnny Cash and Engelbert Humperdinck. Earlier on Wednesday it will have a new situation comedy, "The Nanny and the Professor."

"The Pat Paulsen Show" will start the Thursday night schedule and the "Survivors" will be moved to that night. "Love, American Style" will replace Jimmy Durante and the Lennon Sisters Friday nights and they will move to Saturday nights, following Lawrence Welk.

All the canceled shows have been at the bottom of the Nielsen rating lists.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Saturday—"This Way to Sesame Street," NBC, 5-5:30 p.m. EST, preview of children's series starting Monday on educational stations; "Night Gallery," NBC 9-11, movie-for-TV, Rod Serling trilogy starring Joan Crawford, Roddy McDowell and Richard Kiley.

Sunday—"An Evening with Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte," NBC, 9-10 p.m.

Hunters Given Hay-Buying Tip

LANSING (AP)—Deer hunters headed for the Upper Peninsula should plan to buy their hay or straw for bedding north of the Mackinac Bridge, the State Agriculture Department advises. B. Dale Ball, department director, explained the entire Lower Peninsula is under quarantine because of the cereal leaf beetle. Only fumigated hay or straw is allowed across the bridge and it would be much easier for hunters to buy their hay or straw in the Upper Peninsula, Ball said.

Appointment

LANSING (AP) — House Republican leader Robert Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, has announced the appointment of Carmen Seats, former city editor of the Owosso Argus-Press, to the House Republican staff as an administrative assistant.
